Canada's hush-hush police like to stay that way in quiet cold war with communist world's pros

OTTAWA — To most Canadians, the world of James Bond is a Never-Never land of international espionage, killings and above all willing women. It's as remote as Bangkok, as unreal as the land of Oz. At least it was until the last two or three weeks with the disclosures of the Spencer and Munsinger inquiries. Now we have George Victor Spencer, a poor man's James Bond, and Gerda Munsinger, the ministerial hussy. And the RCMP has its S and I — the Canadian equivalent of the American FBI. The directorate of Security and Intelligence of the RCMP has figured prominently in both inquiries. Its chief, assistant commissioner William Henry Kelly, has suddenly been flushed into the open. Mr. Kelly is 56 today. He's been a Mountie for 33 of those years. In contrast to Commissioner George McClellan, he is the exact opposite of the common stereotype of a policeman. He's red-faced, short and

Ferry Study Slated

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The provincial government took steps Friday to ward off the threat of a possible strike this summer on the B.C. Ferries fleet.

A cabinet committee called for the appointment of a special management-labor committee to study the problem of summer shift schedules.

The decision was taken after a handful of cabinet ministers heard a brief submitted by Victoria lawyer Marney Stevenson, on behalf of some 350 deck and catering employees.

While Mrs. Stevenson's carefully-worded brief made no mention of the word "strike," it left no doubt there would be serious repercussions if no action were taken about the employees' complaints.

LOW MORALE

"The morale of the crews is so low," she warned, "that only a major change in the attitude of management toward these employees can prevent catastrophes during the coming months."

"The employees will not be able to stand up to 12 days of straight work with only three days in which to attempt to recover the energy to carry on for a further 12 days throughout a four-month period."

Mrs. Stevenson told the cabinet her brief is "a plea for the government to take steps to remedy the situation before it deteriorates any further."

MANAGEMENT

"The impression I have gained over the past four months of conferring with these crews is that 1967 will be too late," she said.

The cabinet committee was also told it is the prerogative of management, not of the employees, to work out schedules which meet the demands of the public and give acceptable working conditions to the crews.

The lawyer said she was informed that a committee should be set up to prepare some recommendations.

FIX DATE

This special committee, to consist of two members from management and two from the ferry employees, is to advise the cabinet committee by May as to when a report of its recommendations can be expected.

Attorney-General Bonner, who presided over the meeting, said: "The problem when two parties have taken a fixed position is to get them to move. The best way to achieve this is to get them working together."

Moors Murderers Jeered to Prison

CHESTER, England (Reuters)—A young sales clerk and his blonde mistress were sentenced Friday to life imprisonment on conviction in the grisly sex killings known as "the moors murders."

An all-male jury found Ian Brady, 28, guilty of murdering Edward Evans, 17, and two schoolchildren: John Kilbride, 12, and Lesley Ann Downey, 10. Brady's mistress, 23-year-old Myra Hindley, was convicted jointly of murdering Evans and Lesley Ann.

COLD-BLOODED

Red-robed Judge Fenton, Atkinson declared: "These were three calculated, cruel, cold-blooded murders."

He told Brady: "In your case I pass the only sentence which the law now allows, which is three concurrent sentences of life imprisonment."

An angry crowd booed and jeered outside the court at the end of what the presiding judge called "this horrible case."

COURTYARD

A crowd of about 250 gathered in the castle courtyard to see the two driven away to prison. They surged forward against police lines booing and jeering as Brady was brought out, handcuffed to a policeman, Miss Hindley followed, her arm firmly gripped by a woman prison officer.

The death penalty for murder was abolished in Britain last year for a five-year trial period. Under the new legal rules, Brady and Miss Hindley could spend the rest of their natural lives in jail, or could be released conditionally at any time after a review of their sentences.

ALL NORTH ISLAND 'GREEN' RESERVE

BY JOY HUNTLEY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said northern Vancouver Island will be a forestry recreation reserve for all time.

Soviets Denied Entry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two Soviet ships—elements of the fishing fleet that has been operating off the Pacific Coast—have been denied permission to enter U.S. territorial waters, the U.S. Coast Guard said Friday.

The two vessels, the Skryplev and the Chernjakhovsk, had requested permission to enter Drake's Bay, north of San Francisco, to transfer supplies in protected waters.

Rear Adm. C. C. Knapp, commander of the 12th Coast Guard District with headquarters in San Francisco, said that entry of these ships would be inimical to the best interests of the United States.

He said only six communities will be allowed to develop: Campbell River, Gold River, Woss Lake, Port McNeill, Port Hardy, and Port Alice.

Speaking to a public meeting here, he said "there will be no scattered ribbon development, and no junk and car bodies left along the highways."

He said "It is all well-planned, and it will not be destroyed."

MAJOR HUB

Mr. Campbell said Campbell River fits into this picture as a major hub, like Prince George. "Campbell River is second in growth only to Prince George."

He said he is not in favor of a multi-purpose town in Strathcona Park. He promised even if a townsite is located in the park, it will not develop commercially. He said "there will be very little commerce in that park. Shopping will be done at Campbell River."

Referring to fears of Battle Lake pollution, he said "there will be 100 per cent no pollution—period."

INSIST ON SEWERING

He said the government will insist that all municipalities be seweried if possible.

"Nanaimo calls itself the hub of the Island, but that is baloney," he claimed. "Campbell River leads west to Gold River, it goes north, it is a neighbor of San Francisco, Prince Rupert, and Alaska."

The minister said there are 7,500 in the municipality now, and by 1970 there will be at least 10,000.

"If some of the communities to the north grow faster than predicted, then these figures are all wrong," he said.

He said the municipality has a future second to none. "The tough problem here right now is not what are we going to do next month or next year, but what must we do tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock?"

Troops Patrol Tense Jakarta

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Heavy patrols of battle-armed troops policed the streets of the Indonesian capital Friday, alert for trouble over moves to define the powers of President Sukarno.

Bucks Win with Late Surge

Victoria Maple Leafs and Portland Buckaroos battled on even terms for almost two-thirds of their Western Hockey League playoff game at Memorial Arena Friday night. The Buckaroos finally broke through with a goal, late in the second period, and added two more in the third for a 3-0 victory. See story, picture on Page 14.

'We Will Fight Red or Neutral Regime'

Ky Says Viet Military Will Hold Reins for Year

CAN THO, Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said today his military regime intends to stay in power "at least for another year."

Ky also said if the civilian government that will eventually emerge from general elections is neutralist or Communist "I and my friends will fight it."

Ky spoke to reporters at the nearby Binh Tuy Air Base, which was turned over to the Vietnamese authorities today by the United States.

Forest Firms 'Too Poor' To Exhibit

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's No. 1 industry, lumber, cannot afford to buy space in next year's B.C. Trade Fair which is attracting exhibitors from around the world.

B. M. Hoffmeister said this in commenting on disappointing expressed Thursday by officials of the fair.

Mr. Hoffmeister, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., said: "We are in a period of tight profit squeeze and our promotional expenses must be watched very closely."

It was the first time since the recent political turmoil began to rock Viet Nam that the head of the 10-man military directorate clearly spelled out his plans.

Ky said the elections, expected to be held some time between Sept. 15 and Oct. 1, will elect only an assembly charged with drafting the country's constitution.

Once the constitution had been drafted, Ky said, another vote will be held to elect a legislative assembly which, in turn, will appoint a civilian government.

BITTER BATTLE

Meanwhile, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have killed 362 Communist troops in a bitter battle still raging in central Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

He said they also had captured 40 enemy troops and rounded up 433 suspects. The battle, the first major ground action in more than three weeks, swirled over the flatlands north of Bong Son, 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

CLOSED TRAP

It began Thursday when elements of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division closed a trap on a Viet Cong battalion. The Communists chose to make a stand of it.

The high toll of enemy dead indicated the Viet Cong battalion had been reinforced. Both North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were reported involved.

Dispatches from the field described U.S. and South Vietnamese casualties as light to moderate.

Spencer's Ex-Wife Recalls

He Was Popular But Leaned Left

COURTENAY — "He was popular when I married him but he had Communist leanings," said a well-known Courtenay resident and former businesswoman.

Kathleen Stephens, 933 Fitzgerald, was describing her nine-year marriage to spy suspect George Victor Spencer.

BREAK-UP

Miss Stephens was married to the late Mr. Spencer in 1933 and they were divorced in 1942.

His leftist beliefs "had nothing to do with the break-up of the marriage," she said.

Miss Stephens said the only change the Spencer case has brought to her life is the "constant ringing of the telephone."

OWNED STORE

Miss Stephens emphatically denied a statement attributed to her by a Vancouver newspaper, that Spencer "came from a good family, and I can't understand why he did it." Miss Stephens said she never said any such thing.

For years she owned a children's-wear store on Fifth Avenue.

State Senators Blast Berkeley Boss

Big Cal 'Haven for Reds, Deviates'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A state Senate committee charged Friday that under President Clark Kerr the giant University of California Berkeley campus has turned into a Communist haven and a centre for sexual deviation.

The death penalty for murder was abolished in Britain last year for a five-year trial period. Under the new legal rules, Brady and Miss Hindley could spend the rest of their natural lives in jail, or could be released conditionally at any time after a review of their sentences.

The Senate fact-finding committee on un-American activities said Kerr was instrumental in rehiring a teacher who, the committee said, lied about former Communist connections.

when he took the state's loyalty oath. Calling the Berkeley campus the "pivotal base" for the anti-Viet Nam war movement in the United States, the committee said Communists or Communist sympathizers first gained power in the "free speech" uprisings of 1964.

The report also criticized Kerr for allowing students and non-students to make use of university facilities to support off-campus political causes.

A spokesman for Kerr's office on the Berkeley campus said Kerr and Chancellor Roger Heyms were expected to make comments on the report later.

The committee cited reports of widespread student homosexuality, dances with lewd themes and the presentation of disgusting debased spectacles "on campus."

In concluding that under Kerr, the campus "sank to a new low," specifically mentioned were the appearance on campus of the San Francisco mime troupe, whose shows were banned from San Francisco's public parks, and dance sponsored by an anti-Viet Nam war group that featured pictures in which nude torsos "were exhibited in a sensual and provocative manner."

At the dance, the committee said, the smell of marijuana "permeated the area," many of the dancers were intoxicated and "sexual misconduct was blatant."

Turning to homosexuality, the committee cited a story in the student newspaper, The Daily Californian. It said the information was published in one part of a five-part series of homosexuality and was obtained from Harold Call, president of the Mattachine Society of San Francisco, a group organized to protect the rights of homosexuals.

by the home secretary in consultation with the chief justice and the trial judge.

A home office spokesman said Friday that in general terms there is no legal minimum or maximum term connected with a life sentence. He agreed with reporters that it was impossible for Brady and Miss Hindley would be freed quickly, although there was nothing in the law to prevent it on the decision of the home secretary.

ASSAULTED

The bodies of the two school-children were found by police last fall in shallow graves on the desolate Pennine moors near Brady's home. They had been sexually assaulted and apparently suffocated.

Brady and Miss Hindley were arrested after her brother-in-law, David Smith, 18, told police of the killing of Evans Smith was the key prosecution witness in the 14-day trial.

RECORDING

Brady clubbed Evans with 14 axe blows in the home he (Brady) shared with Miss Hindley, then strangled the youth in what was described as a demonstration of "the art of murder." He had enticed Evans from a homosexual club in Manchester.

The judge, in his summation to the jury, referred to a tape-recording of L. S. E. Ann's screams and protests made while Brady took pornographic photographs of the child.

position of persons who treat a little girl in that way," he said.

The judge also told the jury that Brady's collection of books on pornography, perversion and torture "did not prove anything." He added: "I dare say that dozens of people read books of that sort and never dream of putting the things they read into practice."

Police surrounded the accused couple in the maximum-security courtroom as the judge sentenced them.

Brady looked pale and impassive as the life sentence was announced. His mistress, who earlier in the trial had said "I still love him," swayed forward and closed her eyes.

The more search that led to the discovery of the children's graves was begun after police found Evans' body under a bed at Brady's home. Brady had taken snapshots of the moors graves. Miss Hindley appeared in some of the pictures.

Brady admitted killing Evans but said Smith, the chief prosecution witness, took part in the slaying after their plan to rob the youth had misfired.

S and I Shuns Public Spotlights

wiry. Always smiling, outgoing, every subject but his work.

He was born in Wales, he joined the force in Regina on July 6, 1933. Since then he has served in Toronto, Halifax, Fredericton, St. John's and London.

The standard RCMP profile sheet states he was made a sub-inspector in December 1942. He has been in Ottawa in 8 and 1 since 1954.

A graduate of the Canadian Police College, he is married but has no children. That's the sum total of the available information about him.

SPE RCMP

Even his wife won't talk about him. Asked Friday such simple things as what hobbies he has, or what books he likes to read, she replied:

"I'm afraid I can't give you any information. The RCMP doesn't like any information given out. I'm sorry but any information about my husband must come from them."

Little more is available on the directorate itself. An RCMP booklet described subversion as "a crime far more menacing, far more evil than that against the person."

BETRAYAL

"It is subversion which, with its partner espionage, entices victims to betray the interests of the country to which they owe allegiance."

"It is this crime that the Directorate of Security and Intelligence is charged by the government of Canada with investigating."

"In the job of helping to preserve national security, its chief task at present are to investigate Communist activity, subversion and espionage, and in co-operation with other federal government departments, to assist in ensuring that only loyal and reliable people are entrusted with the handling of classified government business."

MIGRANTS

It is these tasks that have carried the RCMP into university campuses to investigate left-leaning students and stopping an American Quaker professor, Mulford Q. Sibley, at the border.

S and I works closely with the federal Department of Citizenship and Immigration to screen new entrants to this country. But the relations between the two are not always chummy.

Commissioner McCallan testified recently that the RCMP twice tried to keep Gerda Munzinger out of Canada. They failed the second time, he said, because the immigration department refused to act on their recommendations.

DISCOMFORTING

But S and I was successful in getting two Russian diplomats heaved out of Canada last May. More than a dozen representatives of Iron Curtain countries have been forced to leave in the past 10 years, though only half of them received any publicity.

The recent publicity given the S and I in the Munzinger and Spencer probes has the RCMP brass clearly uncomfortable.

There is a genuine worry that too much of their counter-espionage work is being disclosed.

It has become obvious the RCMP goes to great lengths, expense and effort to keep suspects under surveillance. Teams of men were watching Mrs. Munzinger around the clock. Other teams were taking pictures of George Victor Spencer taking pictures.

RESTRICTIONS

The net work of counter-espionage stretches across the land. And with the use of Interpol—of which Commissioner McCallan is a key figure—into other nations.

The RCMP leaves little to chance when Russian officials travel the country.

Diplomats may move freely within a 75-mile radius of this city. If they want to go farther, they must give 48 hours written permission for foreign travel.

TRAINING

To the S and I, everyone in the Soviet embassy—and Russian journalists in the press gallery—is suspect. They claim that Canada is considered a prime training ground for Russian spies seeking access to classified American information.

They point to the size of the Soviet embassy staff—twice the Canadian embassy in Moscow—as an indication.

At last count there were 98 people connected with the Russian embassy. There are 29 diplomatic officers, 22 clerks, interpreters and other workers and 47 wives. Watch is also kept on the Cuban, Polish and Czechoslovakian embassies.

PROFESSIONALS

The Mounties know they are up against highly trained professionals.

Information from defectors has disclosed that spies get four months physical and mental training at the Marx-Engels school at Gorki. Then comes a technical training course of a year or more in everything from micro-photography and wire tapping to methods of sexual seduction.

MORE TRAINING

The spy-trainees then spend a year at secret service headquarters in Moscow before being selected for service.

Those chosen for foreign postings are sent to one of five schools for advanced training on the countries to which they are being assigned.

To the Russians, espionage is big business. It now appears that to the Mounties, counter-espionage is equally big.

So take a good look at the man beside you the next time you ride the subway. He may be an S and I agent.

Cold Lasting Month and Half Something Else—See Doctor

By DR. MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, a tall, nervous person with two small children, has had a cold for a month and a half. She was advised by a neighbor to take honey and vinegar which she has done for weeks. She is no better, snaps at us, says the children are getting her down, and she always used to have a wonderful disposition. I told her a few days ago that the vinegar is probably thinning her blood, and to please consult the doctor. She was indignant and said she will continue the honey and vinegar remedy. Is she harming herself?—MRS. S.

The vinegar won't "thin her blood," but when a "cold" hangs on for a month and a half, it isn't just a cold. Various respiratory diseases including tuberculosis, are allowed to get too much start because people delude themselves that "it's a cold." Forget about the "blood thinning" as well as the honey and vinegar. Just get your daughter to a doctor to see what really is the matter. A protracted cold is no longer a "cold"—it is a different disease.

Your Good Health

whitehead, or plugged skin glands. They can be evacuated without scarring or burning. Your doctor or a skin specialist can do it. Don't try it yourself—too close to the eyeball.

Dear Dr. Molner: I had X-rays taken of my gall bladder. At first I was told I had gallstones. Then I was told I had gas pockets. Is there such a thing as gas pockets in the gall bladder?—G. F. S.

Not of the gall bladder—but there ARE gas pockets of the bowel. Occasionally these gas pockets are so located as to throw shadows which can be mistaken for gallstones on X-ray examination. Further X-rays taken from a somewhat different angle make it possible to distinguish the gas pockets from stones.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can birth control pills cause headaches?—C. S.

Yes, in some individuals. Changing to another brand may be helpful because dosages vary in different preparations.

Position Called 'Impossible'

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet said Friday that key personnel involved with This Hour Has Seven Days are in an "impossible position" because they have openly defied the corporation.

In his toughest statement yet on the Seven Days furore, he said directors of the publicly-owned CBC soon will decide what to do with the popular television program and its leading personalities.

Education Policy Objective

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — State Secretary LaMarsh said Friday she hopes the June federal-provincial conference in Victoria on education will produce the broad guidelines needed to make the necessary decisions in higher education.

Addressing the Ontario Magistrates' Association convention here, she noted the main topic of the education conference will be finance.

The meeting itself would be a "turning point, the first time the two levels of government have really sat down even to discuss this question in any organized way."

BROAD POLICY
Although no firm decision will necessarily be made "I would hope . . . that we can make a significant start in formulating the broad guidelines within which the necessary decisions can be made."

Miss LaMarsh said first a decision must be reached on the overall commitment, not so much in dollar terms, but as far as the broad policy which is to underlie our activity in this field.

"The other main point must be to define more clearly the role of the two levels of government in supporting higher education."

"There must be a distinction drawn 'between national goals and requirements and what I might term nationwide problems. They do not always mean the same thing and require the same approach."

Car Pact Ratified

OTTAWA (UPI) — Parliament Friday ratified the Canada-U.S. auto free trade agreement, 16 months after it came into effect.

The approval came following a day's debate on the complicated pact, which began operation in Canada in January, 1965. (It went into effect in the U.S. last October, when it was ratified by both houses of Congress.)

Canadian Heroes Remembered

BERGEN OP ZOOM, Holland (CP) — Some 1,400 Canadian soldiers who lie buried here were described by a Royal Dutch Air Force chaplain Thursday as "the young heroes to whom we owe our liberation."

At a memorial ceremony for Canadian soldiers killed in Holland in the Second World War, and at military cemetery here, Units tended by many children, the of the Canadian 4th Infantry chaplains, Rev. Henrik Laan, spoke of the events of 1944-45. He said the youngsters should know about them, and about a debt of gratitude they and their families owe Canada.

Canadian Ambassador W. F. Bull and his wife also attended the rites, held at the Canadian soldiers' cemetery here. Units some of the bitterest fighting of the war.

It was 21 years ago Thursday that German forces in Holland surrendered.

Verbal Orgy

THE VIEW THAT Parliament is losing the respect of people at large, conceded by many MPs themselves, as a result of the continuing wrangling that goes on and the inability of the Commons to get to grips with the many matters that await positive legislative action, is widespread.

And it boils down to the fact that MPs talk too much.

A former Speaker of the House, Mr. Alan Macnaughton, does not put it so bluntly, but that is the substance of his recent address at McGill University. The parliamentary machine has become clogged by its own rules and stagnation is the result.

He makes two pertinent points: that the pressure of government business is here to stay and that unrestricted discussion could become a tyranny of itself. There is the necessity of limiting the traditional right of unfettered debate.

It can scarcely be denied that this is so: the evidence appears every day in reports of parliamentary proceedings. Some rules have been revised to speed up Commons progress but Parliament is still hamstrung by procedures outmoded by reality. Increasingly the nation's business becomes more complex and extensive than ever before, vastly different from the days when its original rules were framed, but the tempo of action has been but slightly accelerated.

And the chief cause of this is the orgy of speech that fills Hansard to its daily brim.

It is obvious that if 200 or more members claim the right of speaking on every subject that comes up for debate, whether for 20 or 40 minutes as the case may be, then progress is bound to be reduced to a snail's pace. Some limitation is imposed on certain matters, but in the budget and Throne speech debates for example every MP is free to have his lengthy say.

And most of them make sure they have it.

This is the essence of democracy, except that even in a democracy commonsense must be applied to the length of discussions if anything other than talk is to result.

Ottawa could be well advised to take heed of how they do it at Westminster. There the British Parliament, with no less complex and vital problems to cope with, manages to dispose of even the most urgent matter demanding attention in three or four days, whereas a major debate on Parliament Hill can run and frequently does into weeks on end.

And this apart altogether from the extreme partisanship that so frequently dominates the Commons or the controversies that attend issues inviting nuances of scandal. The norm of parliamentary procedures is weighed down by the sheer verbosity that takes place.

Mr. Macnaughton says that allocation of time—the permissive allowance of individual participation in debate—should become a basic procedure of the parliamentary forum. If the Commons is to get down to its primary duty, reasonable discussion both in content and length of the problems to be dealt with, some such allocation is long past due.

Members will have to discipline themselves and accept the fact that they cannot all enter a debate regardless. Not if Parliament is to function as it should.

Out of Step

FOUR MONTHS LATE, The Edmonton Journal says, the council of that city has just passed the civic budget. The same point can be made for every city and municipality in British Columbia. They all operate on a fiscal year that begins January 1, but—as in Alberta—they must go budgetless until after they know exactly the terms of the provincial-municipal financial relationship for the ensuing months. And the provincial fiscal year begins April 1.

Why not, the Journal asks, put the municipalities in step with the province? Given an April 1 start to the budget year, they would then be able to chart their courses within a month or so, instead of guessing their way along for the first third of the fiscal period.

It could be suggested, of course, that the province should get in line with the municipalities and commence its own year on January 1. But against this idea is that it is more advantageous to have the provincial budget approved (and the budget debate is generally a February event) before the year begins.

The proposal that April 1 should be made the uniform date can therefore be seen to have some merit. The changeover might involve a temporary upheaval, but the new system would be more sensible. The suggestion could certainly bear the examination of the Union of B.C. Municipalities when it embarks on the study of "Local Government Machinery for the Seventies" which Municipalities Minister Campbell has asked it to undertake as a contribution to the centenary.

Little Choice

ACTING MAYOR EDGELOW'S reaction to a report that a regional sewer program will cost $23,000,000 is neither surprising nor unwarranted. He is only reminding the community of facts when he says that Victoria city has never committed itself to participation in building a system for the Saanich Peninsula, Colwood and Greater Victoria, and when he notes that the city's sewers are more than adequate for its own needs.

But it may be that he is a bit off the mark in his predictions of what will come after the team that has been studying the region's requirements presents its recommendations at the end of this month.

It is unlikely, Alderman Edgelow says, that Victoria will consent to share in the costs of a new district system before its own network reaches capacity; before this point is reached, he suggests, the city will have to ask Saanich to find other means of disposal for the sewage from that municipality that now flows through city lines.

At this point one can only guess at what the engineers will propose. But if their plan depends on Victoria enlarging or rerouting trunks to accommodate the flow from newly-sewered areas to the north and west, if after negotiation the proposed system stands or falls on the city's acceptance of part of this or other substantial costs, Victoria's aldermen would be subjecting their own electors to a growing health hazard by letting it fall.

Perhaps this situation will not arise. But if it does, the city will have little choice but to co-operate in its own interest.

Troubled Island: 1.

Cyprus Peace Formula

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE

THE problem of Cyprus weighs heavily on the world's mind today; the island is one of those Middle Eastern areas that are still in acute trouble. Cyprus shares this unenviable distinction with Palestine, as well as with Aden and the other Arabian territories which Britain has not yet let go.

Like Palestine, Aden, and the Arab principalities along the shores of the Persian Gulf, Cyprus ought to be pricking British consciences, in particular, because Britain bears a major responsibility for the present plight of these unfortunate countries. Since the end of the Second World War, British policy in the Middle East has been culpably illiberal and shortsighted, in contrast to the imaginativeness and generosity of British policy in the Indian sub-continent.

The first step towards finding a solution for the Cyprus problem is to try to understand it, and for this one has to see the problem in depth, in its total geographical and historical setting. This is how the question is approached in a book, just published, by a British observer, Robert Stephens, A Place of Arms. Mr. Stephens, who is foreign editor of The Observer, supplies his readers with the necessary background before offering his own suggestions for a solution.

One of his merits is that he has no axe to grind. He is not concerned to make an apology for his own country's record in Cyprus; he is not pro-Greek, he is not pro-Turk. He is seeking to find a settlement for a conflict which is inflicting suffering on the Turkish minority in Cyprus and on the Greek minority in Istanbul, and which is also a threat to international peace because of the strain that it is putting on the relations between Greece and Turkey.

About 82 per cent of the population of Cyprus are Greeks; the remaining 18 per cent are Turks. The Turks are Muslims; the Greeks are Eastern Orthodox Christians. The Turkish minority in Cyprus, like the Protestant minority of British origin in Ireland, was introduced as a "garrison" into a conquered island. Their ancestors were planted in Cyprus after its conquest from Venice by the Ottoman Turkish Empire in 1571. The Muslim Turkish ex-ascendancy in Cyprus thus has a slightly longer prescriptive right to be domiciled in the island than the Protestant British ex-ascendancy in Ireland has.

The two Cypriot communities came into armed collision with each other towards the close of 1963. About half the Turkish minority has now been concentrated in isolated enclaves under their own military control. The rest of the island, except for two useless British military bases, is now under the control of the Greek majority. The two communities' forces have been stiffened by contingents of unknown strength, of troops from Greece and Turkey, and the United Nations peace-keeping force in Cyprus has a hard task to prevent the fighting from breaking out again. This state of affairs is dangerously precarious. Can any stable permanent settlement be found to replace it?

Mr. Stephens proposes, as a possible solution, that Cyprus' present status as an independent state should be maintained but that the island should be demilitarized, and that its demilitarization and independence should be guaranteed by the United Nations. He suggests that there might be a UN high commissioner and a UN force on the pattern of UNEF, the UN force which has been in the Gaza Strip since December, 1955.

This solution has two clear merits. It would require the partitioning of Ireland is not an encouraging precedent for trying it in another island.

The relative advantage of annexing the whole of Cyprus to Greece is that this would be the natural solution—once granted that some solution on lines of nationality is unavoidable. The Greek Cypriots' 82 per cent is such an overwhelming majority of the island's population that it is vexatious for them to be refused union with Greece, while, on the other hand, the Turkish Cypriots' 18 per cent is so small a minority that it would be difficult to secure a tolerable life for them even in an independent Cyprus under UN auspices.

The union of the whole of Cyprus with Greece would, however, not be practical politics unless, as part of the transaction, Turkey were offered "compensation" that she felt to be adequate. One possibility would be a rectification of the present Græco-Turkish frontier in Thrace. In Greece's part of Thrace there is a local Turkish majority, and the present frontier around the western suburbs of Adrianople is a very awkward one from the Turkish point of view. Here are, perhaps, the elements of a bargain that would eliminate frontier friction from Cyprus and would reduce it in Thrace at the same time.

Why is so small a problem so intractable? One answer is that the background of the Cyprus problem is big. Its geographical setting includes the whole of the Near and Middle East from the Straits of Otranto to the Persian Gulf. As for its historical setting, this extends back behind the British occupation in 1878, the Turkish conquest in 1571 and the Frankish conquest (by English hands) in 1191, to 58 BC when Cyprus was annexed to the Roman Empire. By that date, the great majority of the population of Cyprus had been Greek for about 1,300 years, and it has remained Greek ever since.

A brief, but clear and illuminating, account of this historical background to Cyprus' present problem is given by Mr. Stephens in the opening chapters of his book. Among other relevant information, he gives a sketch of the former Ottoman regime, of its disruption by the impact of Western nationalism, and of Britain's intervention in Cyprus since 1878. This is a chapter of Cyprus' history in which Britons cannot take pride, but which they ought to take to heart. Mr. Stephens is fair-minded in his judgment on Britain's role, as he is in dealing with all the other aspects of a problem that has aroused such violent partisan feelings.

Spain Confronts Britain

By OTTO VON HABBURG

ON May 18 negotiations between Great Britain and Spain on the subject of Gibraltar will open in London. It may be the start of a protracted and bitter fight, whose final outcome nevertheless is easily foreseen.

Morocco's arguments are irrefutable. Historically and geographically Gibraltar forms an integral part of Spain. Juridically President Giscard d'Estaing, a universally respected neutral authority, has shown beyond the shadow of a doubt the latter's right to the Rock.

Militarily, Gibraltar, once an important strategic base, no longer counts in the face of reactors and rockets. Furthermore, in its recently published report on defence, London has clearly renounced its traditional role. England, which prepares to leave Malta and liquidates its classical establishments in Aden and Singapore, has no longer any tangible interest in Gibraltar, the more so since Spain has pursued a policy of peaceful co-existence with the rest of the world. From an economic point of view finally, the Rock is worthless, especially when separated from its market in the south of Spain.

What, one may ask, is then the reason of Great Britain's anachronistic attachment to an imperialist colony in Europe while liquidating the Empire elsewhere without too much regret?

The answer to this paradoxical attitude is purely psychological. Spain and Great Britain strangely resemble each other. They are "islands" flanking the continent, since the Pyrenees are nearly as hard to cross as the Channel. They have excellent natural harbours, a dynamic and seafaring population and relatively few raw materials. Both, hence, look towards the ocean and have founded overseas empires. This was the case in the Americas, where most of the south was Spanish while the north had England as its mother country. It is further remarkable that in the course of history, the two countries alternated in the position of world power: when Spain was in ascendancy, Britain declined and vice-versa.

These facts have led to rivalry. For England a bridgehead on the Iberian Peninsula had consequently much more significance than possessions elsewhere. From here came the famous legend of the Gibraltar muleways, which should enchant every psychiatrist.

London's present attitude is essentially sentimental; not to say irrational. This is dangerous since history teaches us the perils of a policy with such motivations.

The interest of Europe, and in demands a solution which, by a larger sense of the world, satisfying Spain's legitimate aims, will mean the end of an irritating problem poisoning the international atmosphere. The fact that London feels compelled to negotiate is a significant admission of Britain's weak position.

Under these conditions would it not be better to look for a rapid agreement before the inevitable bitterness sets in? Once Gibraltar has been returned to its legitimate status it will be possible to liquidate a burdensome historical legacy of Britain in the last analysis. Britain today suffers more than Spain.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Greece was officially proclaimed an independent monarchy 134 years ago today—in 1832.

King Ludwig I of Bavaria accepted the throne on behalf of his 17-year-old son Otto. The young king was popular with the Greeks, except so far as he was under Bavarian influence, but lost British support when he took Russia's part in the Crimean war. Otto grew more autocratic and the Greeks started looking for another king.

In an election, 230,018 of 244,202 votes were cast for Prince Alfred of England, who was ineligible, and the crown was eventually given to a Danish prince who became King George I of the Hellenes in 1863.

1875—200 people were drowned in the wreck of the Schiller, on the Sicily Isles.

1927—French aviators Nungesser and Coli took off from France to fly to North America and were never seen again.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1915—German attacks pierced the French line at Verdun in two places; British and German units raided each others' lines near Thiépval; Russian warships bombarded the Courland coast.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—the German operators of Transoceanic, a news agency, were arrested in New York for failing to register as foreign agents. The RAF bombed Baghdad; 32 German aircraft were shot down in a day and a night of raids on Hull and Liverpool.

No "Horse Trading"

Britain Suspicious Of French Gestures

By KENNETH HOLROYD from London

BRITAIN is ready and willing to join the European Economic Community if mutually acceptable conditions can be agreed. But the questions of when and whether the opportunity will arise do not entirely depend on the British government.

That is the burden of a spate of recent speeches about Britain's attitude to the Common Market—speeches made by members of Mr. Wilson's second administration which has been deliberately given a more European look.

The choice of Mr. George Brown, the "deputy prime minister", as minister responsible for economic aspects of European affairs, was the clearest possible evidence of the importance which the government attaches to the question.

So was the choice of Mr. George Thomson, who is Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart's deputy and will be mainly responsible for European and NATO affairs.

Mr. Thomson himself has declared that the appointments show that, next only to Britain's commitment to strengthen world peace and prosperity, her relations with Europe "are regarded as the most important issue of British foreign policy in the years immediately ahead".

At the same time, it is also evident from what has been said recently by British ministers that an immediate dramatic bid for formal negotiations on possible British membership of EEC would not be practical politics. There is every reason to believe that this view is shared by most EEC governments.

In the first place, in spite of friendly words from Paris, General de Gaulle has really changed his attitude since 1963 when he vetoed British entry. Obviously, new negotiations would serve no useful purpose unless one could be sure there was no danger of another failure.

Secondly, after the EEC crisis caused by the French last year, the Community is actively engaged with internal problems. How then can one envisage further developments? A period of careful exploration and private consultation clearly lies ahead. If the preparatory work did show that the prospect of a French veto had vanished and if much of the other necessary groundwork can be done, then it is felt in London, the final public negotiations might well be much swifter than those when Britain previously applied for membership.

The preparatory work is bound to be long and painstaking if it is to be effective. But recognizing these facts and problems does not mean that British ministers are in any way lukewarm.

As both Mr. Brown and Mr. Stewart have said in their speeches, the political will does exist in Britain—and Mr. Brown added that the undoubtedly very great difficulties can be overcome if the political will exists on all sides.

Quite apart from the fact that the British government would not enter into a horse-trading business of that nature, they have made it abundantly plain that security must come first.

While the question of possible British membership of the EEC is thus a matter for the future, dependent not on Britain alone, the West is at present in the midst of the NATO crisis caused by General de Gaulle's unilateral withdrawal from the integrated command structure. The British government, like the other governments of the 14, are engaged in close and intensive consultation on these problems.

It has been suggested that friendly remarks made by the French about the possible future accession of Britain to the Common Market may be motivated by the thought that, by holding out such hopes, the French government might influence developments in the NATO crisis.

British sources have made it clear that there can be no question of modifying the British attitude to the NATO crisis in return for a French gesture on common market membership.

Washington Calling

THE talent search is on. With the departure of members of his inner council, and with others to go, it is hardly an exaggeration to say that President Johnson is studying how to recast his administration.

Two conspicuous Johnsons are evident in this exercise. One is his strong inclination to keep around him men whom he has known and trusted over a long period. The other is the ambitious goal of excellence, the desire to adorn the administration with outstanding appointments. In this last category is John W. Gardner, whom the president had scarcely met when he named him secretary of health, education and welfare.

High on the list of trusted familiars is Clark Clifford, and this is one reason Clifford is likely to be tapped for a top job. If he is to be drafted into government from perhaps the most lucrative law practice in Washington, Clifford has indicated a preference for the department of defence.

As a young aide to President Harry Truman, he played an important although little known part in preparing the act which unified the army, navy and air force in a single department of defence.

The next departure is expected to be the under-secretary of state, George W. Ball. In February, he informed one of the president's assistants that he wanted to leave in the spring. The following morning, however, he phoned to say he hoped this word had not been passed to Johnson, since he felt that if he could still be useful he meant to remain.

Ball has the trust of the president, and he is being urged to stay on. The argument is that when—hopefully some time next year—negotiation can bring an end to the Vietnamese war, Ball's service will be invaluable. Since more than any other adviser, he has stressed the imperative need to negotiate a settlement. But along with the other men in the top spots, a 12-hour day seven days a week has taken its toll.

If and when Ball leaves, the likelihood is that his place will be taken by Cyrus R. Vance, now deputy under-secretary of defence. Vance first attracted the president's attention as special counsel to the Senate's preparedness investigation subcommittee. Ever since, Johnson has been high on Vance, whom he promoted from secretary of the army to deputy to Robert S. McNamara.

Clifford would then move to defence as McNamara's deputy. It goes without saying that this is a tentative projection of the shape of things to come. As a political poker player, the president holds his cards close to his vest than any chief executive in memory. The mere rumor of a change in jobs has in the past been enough to bring a hot denial.

Clifford's accomplishments include a pronounced ability to get along with Congress. He was often a cushion between the fiery Truman and hostile critics on Capitol Hill. McNamara's relations with Congress have steadily deteriorated since his deputy, Clifford would be a valuable buffer.

Besides having a major part in drafting the Defence Act, Clifford did most of the work on the bill creating the Central Intelligence Agency. Serving as a member of the foreign intelligence advisory board, Clifford was later named as a law client by one of the nation's greatest corporations.

RCN Fleet 22 Ships by Fall

By DAVE MCINTOSH
OTTAWA (CP) — The navy's combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets will number 22 active combat ships by this fall compared with 60 in 1963, defence officials said Friday.

This number will increase gradually to 31 by 1971, however. The aircraft carrier Bonaventure will come out of year-long refit in April, 1967. Two more submarines will join the fleet, one in 1967 and the other in 1968. Two support ships will come into service in 1969 and four destroyers in 1970-71.

The defence department announced that Canadian-built frigates will see their last active service this summer. Four Second World War frigates—Swansea and Victrola at Halifax and New Glasgow and Ste. Therese at Esquimalt, B.C.—will be turned over to Crown Assets Disposal Corp. for sale. All four have been in reserve.

Of the six remaining frigates, one, Stettler, will be placed in reserve this month on the West Coast. The others will take part in sea training this summer and then be sent into reserve or to the junkyard. Informants said two may be kept in reserve. Officials said the frigates are being retired because of old age and that their continued use would be questionable even if the navy had the manpower to operate them.

FAMOUS SHIP
The retirement of the frigates will make available additional personnel for the manning of destroyers and other ships and for duties and training ashore, the defence department announced.

The Swansea was one of the first and most famous of the 60 frigates built in Canada during the Second World War. Commissioned in October, 1943, she served in the North Atlantic and in less than a year took part in the sinking of three enemy submarines.

Names in the News

'Mother Knows Best' — And Doctors Agree

REDLANDS, CALIF. — If you think "mother knows best" is just an old saw, check with doctors at the Kasier Foundation Hospital here.

They can tell you about Mrs. James Lee of Upland, Calif., whose five-year-old son, Frankie, was in the hospital under treatment for pneumonia, and on April 27 was not conceded much chance of recovering.

On that day Mrs. Lee read a medical column in a newspaper about a boy in similar plight found not to have pneumonia at all but a peanut lodged in his lung.

It rang a bell for Mrs. Lee. Frankie had been eating peanuts a day or two before he became ill. She clipped the column and showed it to her doctor. He ordered a chest X-ray, and sure enough!

Surgery removed the peanut and Frankie went home, as lusty a five-year-old as you can find.

HOLLYWOOD — Singer Judy Garland and her fourth husband, actor Mark Herron, have begun a trial separation. Her lawyer, Herbert Schwab said Herron has left the home where Miss Garland is living with her two children, Lorna, 13, and Joey, 10.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — Dr. David Lewis, an Englishman, and his all-women crew left Auckland in his 40-foot catamaran to begin the second half of a round-the-world voyage. His crew consists of his wife, two daughters and English schoolteacher Patricia Cairns.

LOS ANGELES — Scott paper heir Donald Scott has filed an $878,000 damage suit against actress Corinne Calvet, charging that he was forced to give her expensive gifts to keep her from disclosing their mutual affection to his wife. The suit listed the gifts as a $205,000 home in Beverly Hills, $100,000 for furnishings, plus living expenses and mortgage payments on her property. Scott, 31, was divorced from his wife, Rosalind, last March 16.

LONDON — Mrs. Pamela Blundell, 24, and Miss Pamela Jones, 23, are still friends in spite of it all. A London judge has dismissed Mrs. Blundell's suit for damages against the firm for which both women worked, in which she said the company failed to protect her from repeated horseplay by Miss Jones.

TORONTO — Judge William Lyon has ordered the Ontario department of reform institutions to open its confidential records to a legal-aid lawyer acting for Robert Arnold Baker, 21, who has been waiting in jail almost two years for a new trial on robbery charges.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, CALIF. — Civilian test pilot John B. McKay escaped injury, but the rocket ship X-15 suffered minor damage during an emergency landing on Delmar Dry Lake, 60 miles north of Las Vegas, Nev., the air force reported.

OTTAWA — A closer relationship and understanding between Boy Scouts is "perhaps the most pressing task" facing the Canadian movement, Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, president of the Boy Scouts of Canada, told the 52nd annual national Scout meeting here.

LONDON — The Queen has opened the new Commonwealth building of London's pioneering post-graduate medical school —

Water Cheaper At Deep Cove

Many residents in Deep Cove have had a reduction in water rates.

Minimum charge has been reduced from $13 for 8,000 gallons every two months to $11.50 for 6,000 gallons. The reduction will be effective on the next bills.

The reduction will not apply to consumers on the Lands End Road extension which was connected to the Deep Cove water works system earlier this year.

FUTURE CUTS

The 61 consumers on this line will continue to pay $15.50 every two months for 10,000 gallons. Chairman of the water works trustees, Brian W. W. Clowes, said there could be a reduction in this area in the future when more connections were made on the Lands End line.

Deep Cove consumers pay $1 every two months for each 1,000 gallons of water consumed in excess of the minimum.

USING LESS

Although the new figures show an increase in the cost per gallon, they also show a considerable reduction for those consumers using less than the new minimum of 6,000 gallons every two months.

"There are few consumers who top this minimum," said Mr. Clowes.

Deep Cove buys its water from Central Saanich, but this summer will have a small supply of its own to augment this source.

Mr. Clowes said a well has been drilled which is expected to produce 20,000 gallons daily.

a project to which Canadians gave £300,000, the biggest contribution of any country outside Britain. The new block is an extension of the 35-year-old school adjoining Hammer-smith Hospital in west London.

AJACCIO, Corsica — Several Corsican towns held celebrations to mark the anniversary of the death of Corsican-born Emperor Napoleon I, who died in exile on the island of St. Helena in the Atlantic, on May 5, 1821.

BOMBAY, India — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has begun an on-the-spot study of conditions in Maharashtra state, one of the regions worst affected by drought this year. But she could not get into the main affected areas because off-season rains made roads impassable.

WINNIPEG — Agriculture Minister George Hutton has announced that he is retiring from politics to fulfill a life-long ambition to become a Lutheran minister.

Frigates Doomed

The New Glasgow was commissioned in the same year. She rammed and sank a U-boat off Northern Ireland in March, 1945.

The Ste. Therese and Victrola began anti-submarine service in 1944. In the early 1950s the navy had 18 frigates.

By this fall the line-up of active combat ships in the Atlantic and Pacific fleets will be: Atlantic: Submarine Ojibwa; support ship Provider; destroyers Saguenay, Kootenay, Nipigon, Skeena, Terra Nova, Annapolis, Restigouche, Columbia, St. Laurent, Gatineau, Ottawa, Assiniboine, Chaudiere, Margaree and Fraser.

Pacific: Destroyers MacKenzie, Saskatchewan, St. Croix, Yukon and Qu'Appelle.

In ready reserve on the East Coast are the destroyers Athabaskan, Algonquin and Crescent.

Credit Card Used Illegally

A woman used a credit card she found in her new apartment to get goods totaling $298.53 from the T. Eaton Co.

Margaret Mueller, 1539 Munroe, pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Friday to two charges of false pretences and was remanded to May 13 for a pre-sentence report.

Det. Lorne Johnson said $166.41 worth of goods had been recovered.

USED NINE TIMES

He said the dress she wore in court had been obtained through use of the credit card.

Miss Mueller moved into the apartment in December and found the credit card the following month, court was told.

On Jan. 22, she went to the store and charged $117.40 worth of clothes and groceries, Det. Johnson said.

On eight later occasions, she fraudulently obtained credit to buy more clothing and groceries, court was told.

Two men who were "leading marginal existences" were sentenced to six months in jail each by Magistrate William Ostler.

James Crawford, 545 Johnson, had pleaded guilty last week to stealing groceries worth $4.86 from the Safeway store at 707 Port.

Reds Accused Of Arrogance

GENEVA (Reuters) — Britain has accused Communist countries of arrogantly dismissing proposed disarmament measures favored by all other countries at the 17-power Geneva disarmament conference. Lord Calvert, British disarmament minister, told the conference the Communist position was untenable and they could not go on brushing aside these proposals with impunity.

Falling Tree Kills Logger

SPUZZUM (CP) — Gordon Frank Garrow, 41, of Lillooet, was killed when struck by a falling tree in a logging accident near here. He was employed as a faller by C. and C. Contracting of Vancouver.

Bridge Results

Winners of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club's monthly rubber and series: Section A, North-South: 1. Laura Taggart and Owen Graham; 2. Eric Greenwood and Walter Allen; 3. Maria Collin and John Plonk; 4. Marjorie Hudson and George de Long. East-West: 1. Les Jackson and George Marsden; 2. Anne Dye and Marjorie Parry; 3. Phil Bagel and Eric Goodwin; 4. Marianne Powell and Mike Chapman. Section B, North-South: 1. Harry Brown and Leslie Stewart; 2. Ida Deane and Bud Waddington; 3. Joan Strick and Tony Marsh; 4. Jo Waddington and Cecil Brown. East-West: 1. Kaye Dye and Ron Smith; 2. Betty and Chuck Miller; 3. Betty Laine and Bill Brown-Cave; 4. Elizabeth Warren and Jack Goldie.

Frederick Chabon, 724 Yates, admitted last week to obtaining food by fraud in a downtown cafe.

Magistrate Ostler told both men that he would recommend that both serve their sentences in the Alouette River unit.

Gordon Stidson, 1020 Catherine, had a .38-calibre revolver tucked in his pants when he visited a city beer parlor March 19.

Stidson pleaded guilty to having an unregistered firearm and was fined $35.

PLAN HALTED

He told the court that he had found the revolver in a pile of junk and was going to sell it.

Magistrate Ostler halted this plan by ordering the revolver confiscated.

He told Stidson he was lucky he was not in more serious trouble.

A youth who had a fight with his girl friend took his anger out in a glass panel at Victoria Meat Market, 625 Johnson.

Kenneth Purvis, HMCS Naden, pleaded guilty to causing wilful damage under $50 and was fined $50.

He was ordered to pay $41.60 in compensation.

Court was told Purvis smashed the glass April 22 after the fight with his girl friend.

James Carlin, 1047 Balmoral, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months probation.

He had pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing to stealing a $3.99 clock from S. S. Kresge Co. Ltd. store, 1100 Douglas.

Fined for being minors in Edith Wilford, 235 Gorge, $30; possession of liquor: James Rutledge, 2181 Haultain, $50; Christopher Butler, 2150 Central, $40; Thomas Mackay, 3830 Lauder, $40; Clifford Watt, 2916 Prior, $35.

Fined for careless driving: Fritjof Jernstet, 881 Violet, $35; Elizabeth Melver, 450 Dallas, $35; Robin Sealy, address unavailable, $40; Eldrene Simons, 2625 Prior, $40; John Van-Munster, 1235 Crown, $40.

There's more to moving than muscle.

There's service, for example. The kind of specialized service you get from Heaney's. Like household cleaning. Heaney's will not only move your possessions, they will also arrange to have the house cleaned when the move is over. From polishing the floors to cleaning the windows.

Worried about your appliances? Don't. Heaney's will disconnect them. Pack them for moving. Then re-connect at the other end. Got an outboard boat you want to take? It won't go in the van. But Heaney's can move it ship-shape and cheaply through low-cost pool car rail service. Heaney's will help you move, too. Purchase travel tickets. Make hotel and motel reservations. Arrange for the care and shipping of your pets.

Anyone with muscles can move furniture. Heaney's remove the worries. Next time you move, remember: Big or Teeny — just call Heaney. The movers with the Red Carpet Service.

Law and the Driver

Many motorists are not aware of the changes of the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act. For their benefit, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee has prepared a list of traffic regulations with explanations where needed.

Not included are clauses which refer specifically to professional drivers.

Revising on the committee are Arthur Sharp, representing the superintendent of motor vehicles; Kenneth Reid, Victoria traffic engineer, and traffic specialists from all area police departments and the RCMP. Chairman is Cmdr. J. M. Loomis.

SECTION 128 (5)—Yellow Not at Intersection

When a yellow light alone is exhibited at a place other than an intersection by a traffic-control signal,

(a) the driver of a vehicle approaching the signal shall cause the vehicle to stop before entering the nearest marked crosswalk in the vicinity of the signal, or if there is no such marked crosswalk a stop cannot be made in safety; and

(b) a pedestrian shall not enter the roadway in the vicinity of the signal until either

(i) the traffic control signal facing the vehicular traffic exhibits a red light; or

(ii) a traffic control signal instructs him that he may cross the roadway.

ARROW LAKES CEMETERIES PUBLIC NOTICE

British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has now concluded arrangements for closure and protective treatment of the following cemeteries affected by the Arrow Lakes Reservoir:

BENATA
BURTON
MAPLE (East Arrow Park)
MT. CARTIER

The cemeteries will be officially closed. Graves and monuments will be moved only on written request of duly-authorized next-of-kin or representative. For each cemetery the names of those buried will be permanently commemorated on a bronze plaque. The cemeteries will be covered with protective material against erosion and any standing monuments will be laid flat over the grave site mark.

These arrangements have been agreed upon in detail with the former cemetery operators, and have been approved by the Public Utilities Commission.

In accordance with the regulations of the Public Utilities Commission, the Authority gives notice that it will undertake the operations of grave relocation and protection for these cemeteries beginning on June 1, 1966. All known next-of-kin are being notified by personal letter from the Authority. To date the Authority has not been able to trace the next-of-kin for the following graves:

Many Services To Observe Mother's Day

Mother's Day in the Christian Home will be the sermon topic of Pastor A. M. Spent at the 11 a.m. service today in the Seventh-day Adventist Church, Pandora and Vancouver.

At a special service at 7:30 p.m. the Missionary Volunteer Society will conduct a Mother's Day program. Mrs. David Meservia will speak on famous mothers of the Scriptures and songs will be presented to mothers present.

Christian Family Sunday will be observed at both services in Fairfield United Church this week. At the 11 a.m. service a period of worship through drama will be given by Mrs. K. W. G. Hillon, Hilary Scott, Jamie Scott and John Anderson. Mrs. Scott will be soloist and the choir will sing "Bless This House." Rev. H. W. Kerley will speak on "The Church in the Home."

At the evening service, the OGIT Explorers and Messengers will conduct a dedication ceremony.

Operation Crossroads Africa is the theme of a film to be shown at Centennial United Church Sunday evening.

Spiritual versus materialistic views of man's nature will be explored at First Church of Christ, Scientist, in a Bible lesson on Adam and Fallen Man at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. today.

Guest preacher at both morning services Sunday in Grace English Lutheran Church will be Rev. John Zimmerman, president of the Western Canada Synod, Lutheran Church in America.

Motherhood's Highest Plane is the subject of Pastor Lloyd Mackey at the 11:15 a.m. service in Parkdale Evangelical Free Church, 3281 Harriet, this Sunday.

In the 7 p.m. service, the 19-voice youth choir will sing. Elizabeth Townsend and Christine Lonsbury will be honored at a CGIT recognition service after the 11 a.m. service in Metropolitan United Church. Five-year service pins will be presented to Janet Wright, Patty Thurber and Linda Daguid, members of the junior choir.

Mother's Day will be observed with the sacrament of infant baptism and a sermon by Rev. J. Lewis W. McLean entitled "Flowers, Families and God" at the 11 a.m. service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. Arthur Gowanlock of Toronto, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Evangelism and Social Action, will speak at the evening service.

Rev. N. K. Archer will continue his series of sermons on Abraham at the 11 a.m. service of Emmanuel Baptist Church on Sunday, and will give the second part of his evening series of sermons on "The Early Church."

The Sacrament of infant baptism will be administered at First United Church at the 9:30 a.m. service on Sunday.

OGIT girls taking part in their annual "Mother's Day" service are Lee Hunt, Joan Holliday, Nancy Arvill, Karen Green and Ruth Goldsmith. The sermon, "When Is a Christian Family?" will be given by Karen Green and Ruth Goldsmith.

The International Order of Job's Daughters, Bethel 2, will attend the 11 a.m. service. Rev. Robert J. D. Morris will speak on the subject "Are Families Obsolete, at both services."

Evening service will be held with Metropolitan congregation at 7:30 in that church.

Continuing the second in a series of messages on the Resurrection of Christ, the pastor, Rev. Robert D. Holmes will speak on the topic "The Theological Necessity" at the 11 a.m. service on Sunday in Central Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. the topic will be "The Confession of Sin."

Belmont Avenue United Church will mark Mother's Day and Christian Family Sunday with a special emphasis on the place of Christian faith in the home and community. The evening service will be under the auspices of the United Church Women of Belmont Avenue.

Four Doctrines Fundamentals Of Foursquare

By REV. J. WESLEY WRAY

The Victoria Church of the Foursquare Gospel, which has been ministering to the city of Victoria for more than 30 years, represents the International Church of the Foursquare Gospel with headquarters in Los Angeles, Calif.

The Foursquare organization was founded under the leadership and ministry of Canadian-born Amos Semple McPherson, with the vision and purpose of interdenominational world-wide evangelism. Today its ministry reaches into 28 countries of the world, with 120 missionary units, 1,436 national pastors and evangelists, 26 Bible schools, 21 day schools and 1,518 churches outside U.S. and Canada.

The Foursquare Gospel stands for the fundamentals of the Christian faith with the four basic doctrines centering on Jesus Christ as the Saviour of the world; baptizer with the holy spirit; great physician and soon coming king. Believing that the Bible is the inspired word of God and that salvation can be gained only by the grace of God through faith in the blood of Jesus Christ, the Foursquare Gospel has continued through the years to preach and practice tenets of faith as laid down by the apostolic church.

Having been born during the "Pentecostal revival" near the beginning of this century, the Foursquare Gospel contends for the baptism of the Holy Spirit as experience by the New Testament church according to the Book of Acts. Knowing that "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever," Foursquare people around the world continue to pray for and receive divine healing for the sick and also look forward to that day when Jesus Christ will come again as King of Kings.

The local congregation conducts a full schedule of church activities including Sunday school and youth activities at 291 Esquimalt Road, under the leadership of Rev. J. Wesley Wray as pastor. This faithful and aggressive congregation seeks to make known to the people of the city of Victoria the full gospel message and have joined with the 800 churches across North America in fasting and prayer for a mighty spiritual revival for this generation.

Recognizing that the world today is bound in the fear of possible nuclear destruction and realizing that immortality in its many forms is sweeping the world, the Church of the Foursquare Gospel proudly presents Jesus Christ as the answer for the world today and the only hope of life eternal.

Presbyterians Unite

Three City Congregations Join

Three Victoria Presbyterian churches will become one at a special service at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Erskine Presbyterian Church, Harriet and Lurline.

The three churches are St.

Paul's, Gorge and Erskine. First step in their amalgamation came last August when St. Paul's and Gorge were united. Erskine will join the other two this Sunday.

The united congregation will use the Gorge buildings until a new building or buildings can be built. A new name for the congregation will be decided upon later.

Erskine Presbyterian was built in 1913 under the direction of the church extension committee of the presbytery of Victoria. The previous year services had been held in Boleskine Road Public School, conducted by W. J. Mark, a student at Westminster Hall, Vancouver. The church's first minister was Rev. J. Campbell.

In addition to Dr. Campbell the congregation has been ministered to by Rev. S. Lundie, Rev. Daniel Walker, Rev. A. O. Thomson, Rev. T.

H. McAllister, Rev. E. G. Thompson and Mr. R. MacMillan.

Rev. E. A. Wright has been minister of the congregation during the past four years. Clerk of session is T. Braid and organist is Mrs. J. F. Colburn.

Sunday afternoon service, the final one to be held in the Erskine building, will be conducted by Rev. A. M. Boston, Presbytery moderator, assisted by members of the Presbytery.

Labor Problems Parley Topic

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian observer group headed by George V. Haythorne, federal deputy minister of labor, will attend the second Inter-American conference of labor ministers to be held May 7-14 near Caracas, Venezuela. The conference is to review progress made in national plans for economic and social development in Latin American countries since 1963. It also will study the Western hemisphere's labor prospects.

Old Painting Recent Mystery

Madonna and Child by Antonio da Viterbo, which is on loan to Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, was subject of mystery about 11 years ago. Original painting emerged after restoration by removal of over-painting. Dr. Maurice Goldblatt of University of Chicago art gallery identified work as that of Viterbo, who belonged to Umbrian school of painting in late 15th and early 16th centuries. Property of Mrs. F. C. E. Roome, 4763 Timber Lane, painting has been on loan to gallery since restoration in 1959. —(Robin Clarke)

Former Island Priest Dies in San Francisco

A Jesuit priest who served in the Diocese of Victoria and did mission work among the Indians of Nootka Island, died last Sunday in the Jesuit infirmary at the University of San Francisco in California.

He was Father Aloysius S. Stern, S.J., who lived here shortly after the turn of the century for eight years. He was 81.

A native of Bavaria, he came to New York at the age of 12 and at 14 entered the Pontifical College Josephinum at Columbus, Ohio, where he was ordained a priest in 1902. Then followed his eight years on Vancouver Island. He said he was inspired in these efforts by the example of a predecessor of a century earlier, Franciscan Padre Magin, Catala.

"ANOTHER WORK"
"But I had the feeling I was called to another work," Father Stern once said. In December, 1910, he became convinced of it after a pilgrimage to Padre Catala's grave in Santa Clara, Calif., and a spiritual retreat. On Jan. 2, 1911, he was accepted into the Society of Jesus. At 36 he began seminary training again, studying in Los Gatos, Calif., and Cleveland, Ohio.

He held a session of parish assignments in California, Oregon and Washington and then became hospital chaplain at San Francisco General Hospital where he served from 1925 to 1947.

Blood clots in his legs finally forced him to relinquish the rugged, 24-hour-a-day round of ministering to the sick.

But it did not stop him from walking slowly and painfully about the University of San Francisco campus with two canes for support, acting as an outdoor confessor to hundreds who sought his counsel—bishops and many priests among them. In his latter years at USF, a kindly man of deep insight with his canes and sometimes supported by a penitent's arm, he became "the city's only moving landmark," as one San Francisco newspaper put it.

That was his priestly career. When he died last week he was the oldest member of the California Province of the Society of Jesus.

Solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated in St. Ignace Church on the campus and Father Stern was buried in the Jesuit cemetery in Santa Clara.

Visiting Speaker
A distinguished British medical doctor, who is visiting Canada to promote co-operation between clergy and doctors in the work of healing, will deliver the sermon at 11 a.m. Sunday in Christ Church Cathedral.

Dr. Ernest E. Claxton is the principal assistant secretary of the British Medical Association and he is the association's representative on the Churches' Council of Healing.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday he will speak to the combined congregations of St. John's Anglican, First United and Metropolitan United Churches in Metropolitan Church. The service will be broadcast over CJVI.

Dr. Claxton, who lives near London, has had 20 years of hospital and general practice in Britain and Malaya, and was with the British Medical Association for 20 years.

During this time in addition to his duties in England, he travelled extensively in Africa and the Far East. He left the BMA to take up the post of principal assistant secretary.

MANY BOOKS
Dr. Claxton is the brother of the Bishop of Blackburn in England. He is the author of many books on diet, arthritis, diabetes and other subjects.

On Wednesday Dr. Claxton will speak at a public meeting in the Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. auditorium at 8 p.m. The talk will be of special interest to all those engaged in and concerned with the many problems in the field of medico-religious healing.

Charter Aim Of Churches

Establishment of a federal charter next year is the aim of 76 Canadian Free Churches. At the recent B.C. District Conference of the Evangelical Free Church in Central Free Church, Burnaby, preparation of a draft constitution was approved. Pastor Lloyd Mackey and Percy Trowsdale represented Victoria's Parkdale Free Church.

Well-Known Choir To Sing Oratorio

Victoria conductor Frank Tupman will direct a performance of Haydn's oratorio The Creation in Metropolitan Church at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The 60-voice Metropolitan Sanctuary Choir will sing, and soloists will be Dawn Benoit, soprano; Rob Greenwood, tenor; and Alban Husband, bass. Eric Boothroyd will be at the organ.

The choir was founded by David Spencer in 1862 and over the years has been conducted by many leading city musicians, including Edgar Holloway, James Parfitt, Aaron Parfitt, Frederick King, Charles Palmer, and Capt. James Gayler, musical training officer at HMCS Naden.

The choir is composed of men and women between the ages of 19 and 75.

The Creation was first performed in Vienna on March 19, 1793.

Theologian Speaks Today

Protestant theologian Robert McAfee Brown will give a free public lecture at 8 p.m. today in First United Church.

Dr. Brown is professor of religion at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif. He was invited to Victoria by Bishop Remi J. De Roo who met him at Vatican Council II.

Dr. Brown will also speak at a luncheon in the Empress Hotel ballroom today, to be attended by clergy and leading laymen.

The subject of Dr. Brown's talk at noon today is Theological Issues at the Vatican Council. At his public lecture he will speak on After the Council, What? — A Protestant View of Vatican II.

Considered one of the most outstanding of American theologians and modern thinkers, the doctor is also an author of note.

Heavy Trading

Vancouver Late Recovery

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices recovered from a heavy decline on Friday to the highest in nearly three years as prices dropped for most of the session, then staged a tremendous recovery in the final hour.

A new story that General Motors would resume normal operations at all its assembly plants on Monday halted one of the steepest declines in history and led to a wild buying spree.

The ticker tape ran 23 minutes late at the close.

Decline Continues

MONTREAL (CP) — Stock prices continued to drop on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges Friday.

Eight issues dropped a point or more at the close. Losses outnumbered gains 156 to 33.

The composite index recorded a decline of 1.34 points to 154.33, bringing its loss for the last two sessions to 3.63.

Advance Halted

LONDON — Yesterday's sharp decline in New York brought the post-budget stock market advance to a halt. Selling was not unduly heavy but the main list showed mostly fractional losses by early afternoon.

Internationally favored issues were under light pressure, notably Philips Lamp, Electric and Musical Industries, Bax and Rank organization. Losses were held to minor fractions.

Trainer Tackles Referee

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Kimpio Armario of Ghana outpointed Italian Gilberto Biondi in a 12-round fight Friday night.

Wild scenes from Italian spectators greeted the decision. Ruggiero, Biondi's trainer, jumped into the ring and threatened to fight referee Terry Rilly. Armario's trainer, Ambrose Palmer, also threatened to fight the referee.

Armario weighed 134 pounds Biondi 136.

More Rain More Delay

HOUSTON (AP) — Rain washed out the $117,000 Champions International Golf tournament for the second straight day Friday.

The first round of the 72-hole tournament now is scheduled to start today.

Bob Rule, executive secretary of the sponsoring Houston Golf Association, said plans now call for 18-hole rounds Saturday through Tuesday.

Kentucky Derby Field Shrinking

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Sean E. Indian was scratched from the Kentucky Derby Friday and Exhibitionist loomed as a doubtful starter because of a swollen lip, reducing the probable field for today's running of the classic to 14.

"The swelling has not gone out of his leg," explained Mrs. Mary Keim, who owns and trains Sean E. Indian as she sadly announced the scratching of the horse. "He will be okay in two or three days but that is too late."

Jockey Earle Fies, released by Mrs. Keim earlier in the day, was signed immediately.

Abe's Hope, the favorite, breezed four furlongs in 50 seconds just to keep limber as did Advocate, Amberoid went three furlongs in 36 3/5 and Knut King, second choice to Abe's Hope, breezed three furlongs in 36.

The race will be televised beginning at 2 p.m. on Channels 2, 4, 7, 12, according to the networks involved.

Symphony Plans Stimulating

By WILLIAM THOMAS

It's not often that the simple announcement of a season of symphony music generates excitement but Otto-Werner Mueller has compiled a concert series for 1966-67 that should prove both artistically stimulating and a box office bonanza.

The Victoria Symphony conductor has somehow overcome the problems of budgeting so that the most distinguished group of soloists ever heard in a concert season here will be performing for the centennial series of concerts.

Mr. Mueller has included in the series music from Bach to Shostakovich and two major choral works.

For the music lover who has complained that the symphony rarely offers modern works two special compositions will be featured during this exciting season.

Following a lengthy correspondence with the young English composer Christopher Steel, the Victoria conductor has chosen to give Steel's Theme and Variation its North American premiere in Victoria.

To contribute to the centennial theme a work by a Canadian composer has been commissioned through the Canadian Music Centre. Mr. Mueller explained he hopes this will be by a musician who is familiar with British Columbia and who can capture some of the spirit of the province in the music.

Probably the major coup for Victoria is the tentative agreement by Canadian tenor Richard Verreux to appear here in a performance of Verdi's Requiem two weeks prior to Easter.

Music lovers who missed the sell-out performances of the J. S. Bach Christmas Oratorio two years ago will get a second chance when the symphony offers this work with guest soloists.

Mueller

Norris

This will be an extra concert over and above the usual 10-pair series. The second extra will be the opera Don Pasquale.

The Donizetti work will be performed by the Canadian Opera Company; they will use an English libretto.

To open the series Mr. Mueller has invited his former pupil, mezzo-soprano Huguette Turangeau, to perform songs from M. de Falla's El Amor Brujo. This ballet suite includes a series of songs that may be offered by either mezzo or baritone.

Richard Norris, a young American pianist, will be featured in the Liszt piano concerto No. 1.

One of the highlights of the first half of the season will be the appearance of French-horn soloist Joseph Eger.

Mr. Mueller offered the opinion that Eger is now the world's foremost player of this difficult instrument.

He will perform the Richard Strauss concerto with the symphony.

Victoria's own Robin Wood will be featured with principal trumpet David Fisher in the Shostakovich concerto No. 25 for piano, trumpet and string orchestra.

Guest conductor in 1967 will be László Gál, a Hungarian now resident in Montreal.

The Mahler offering this season will feature Sheila Marks soprano. She will sing the voice passages in the composer's symphony No. 10. Conductor Jean Angers will hear his own teacher from Montreal, Calvin Sieb, play the Khachaturian concerto.

To complete the series Russian pianist Dmitri Bashkirtov should draw a packed house to hear Rachmaninoff's piano concerto No. 2.

Conductor Otto-Werner Mueller emphasized that the program will include works by Beethoven, Mozart and other giants of the traditional repertoire to provide a balanced musical diet.

He explained that the musical development of the orchestra over the last few years has enabled him to offer a wider range of compositions including a number of exciting modern works.

Young Talent Invited

Talented young Victorian musicians are invited to take part in a special concert Dec. 11 and 12.

Symphony conductor Otto-Werner Mueller said Friday the symphony society invites young players to submit ideas for the program.

He stressed that the selections must be rehearsed ready for performance by mid-September at the latest.

SUITABILITY
Choice of performers will be made on the basis of the individual's musical talent and the suitability of the work chosen in relation to compiling a balanced program.

To open this special concert the orchestra will play Mozart's Haffner symphony. After this the program belongs to the young musicians.

Mr. Mueller will announce the program and the selected soloists as soon as auditions are completed.

Rare Gold Coin Included In $40 Offering

OTTAWA (CP)—The first Canadian gold coin minted in 50 years will be sold only as part of a set of seven coins. It will cost the public $40 for the set which includes the new $20 gold piece.

Finance Minister Sharp announced Friday that orders now are being taken for the coin set. The books will stay open until Sept. 30, 1967. Deliveries will start next January.

The gold coin will be about the size of the present 25-cent piece. It will be packaged with the six others, all newly-designed to mark the centennial of Confederation, in a five-inch square leather case bearing the Canadian coat of arms.

BEVEN COINS
Face value of the coins is $21.91.

The Queen's head will be on the obverse side of the $20 gold coin and the coat of arms on the reverse. The other six coins—from one cent to one dollar—also bear the Queen's head on the obverse, and on the reverse the new wildlife series designed by Alex Colville of Sackville, N.B., announced April 20.

The gold coin is the first minted in Canada since 1914 when $5 and $10 pieces were struck.

Chips with Everything

Gallant Attack Launched On Hard Stage Target

By BERT BINNY

The Brentwood College Drama Club gave the first of two performances of Arnold Wesker's Chips With Everything at the McPherson Playhouse on Friday evening.

Unhappily this performance can be summed up as a gallant but unsuccessful attempt to achieve a very hard goal.

The play didn't come off as a whole; there were short interludes that definitely did. Actually, the state of affairs turned out to be that the fewer the number of people involved in any scene, the better that scene would be.

THEATREY APPLAUDED

But there was one notable exception to this peculiar rule. Towards the end of the first act there was an interlude depicting how to filch a bucket of coal from under the very nose of a sentry and from over a high wire fence.

Once the action began not a word was spoken, but the organization and execution of this bit of petty thievery evoked spontaneous and genuine applause from the audience.

Probably the reason that the play as a whole didn't come off was that the actors, while they may well have known what they were meant to achieve, didn't know how to do it. The fault wasn't theirs; the script was too difficult and even the most sympathetic and detailed direction cannot impart understanding beyond the capacity of the cast.

REFLECTION

Also, it has been pointed out that the creation of character should be about 90 per cent the responsibility of the actor but, when the actor is unable to create his own character, naturally the director has to step in and help.

The result of this is the presentation of characters who are the player's idea of the director's idea of what the author wanted; something no deeper than a reflection.

We got several presentations of this nature Friday night and they tended to be very similar where distinctions seemed to be called for.

VITAL PERFORMANCE

Dale Berry as Corporal Hill gave a consistently vital performance while John Dundee as Charles and Terry Kirby as Andrew were very satisfactory. Harry Taylor's Smiler always brought laughs and Robert Leaf as Pip worked very hard in a difficult, ponderous part.

Lighting and costuming were always good. The use of levels and alternative positions for various scenes was well conceived. However, some of the scenes were rather crowded and, in circumstances like this, it is hard to focus audience attention on the particular "man of the moment." This difficulty, however, was usually satisfactorily overcome.

DIFFERENCE

It will be remembered that, 14 months ago, the College Drama Club presented a modern adaptation of Antigone (with notable assistance from Shawinigan Lake School girls). This was an excellent production; everybody in it knew not only where they were going but how to get there. This knowledge provides the difference in Brentwood's 1966 and 1965 productions.

Chips With Everything goes on this evening at 8:30 p.m. It is directed by Robert Orr assisted by Chris Peter and Don Wood.

Leafs Beaten, 3-0 Series All Square

By JIM TANG

"They're going to do it but they're going to do it the hard way. They insist on it."

It was one of the 4,489 Memorial Arena fans commenting on last night's Western Hockey League playoff game, and he was talking about the Victoria Maple Leafs. He had just watched them lose a 3-0 game in which the Portland Buckaroos had to be little more than adequate.

The rather easy victory made the final a best-of-three affair which opens tonight at Memorial Arena and continues at Portland Monday. Where it goes from there is anybody's guess at the moment.

The Buckaroos won't know until Monday, it was reported last night, whether they can have their home ice for another game. If they can't and the series goes seven games the series will conclude in Victoria, probably Wednesday night.

Maple Leafs turned in what was probably their poorest effort in 11 playoff games and their futility was mainly caused by their inability to come up with the first shutout of the 18 playoff games.

They missed one of their best chances midway through the first period when Larry Keenan got away a weak, and wide, shot with half the net open. After that, it was sporadic attacking.

skate and, secondly, by the Buckaroos' ability to control the Milan Marcetta-Bob Barlow-Andy Hebertson line.

It was hard to tell if the Buckaroos could have been better had the need for something better been there. But they were more adequate as they ended the Leafs' home-ice win streak at 13 games and handed goal-keeper John Henderson his first Memorial Arena defeat.

NOT HIS FAULT

And it certainly wasn't Henderson's fault. The tall veteran, staying on his feet and playing alertly, turned in one of his best games of the season and deserved the game award he received.

He made fine stops on Gerry Goyer, Dick Van Impe and Bill Saunders in the scoreless first period, made a great play on Connie Macdonald's sizzler with the game still scoreless in the second period and saved the situation again with another stop on Van Impe after Goyer had opened the scoring late in the period.

But the Leafs couldn't make the most of repeated chances given them by their goal-keeper and Rick Charron had only a few tough shots at he

Gadsby Predicted Next Wing Coach

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Bill Gadsby, veteran defenceman with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, will coach Detroit next season.

Gadsby, retiring from active playing after 20 seasons in the NHL with Chicago, Black Hawks, New York Rangers and the Wings, met with Detroit owner Bruce Norris Thursday night after the team was defeated by Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup final.

The Habs defeated the Wings 3-2 in overtime to win the series 4-2.

INSURANCE MAN

Gadsby, 38-year-old native of Calgary now in the insurance business in Edmonton, is scheduled to meet with Norris again within two weeks to sign a contract as coach, the newspaper says.

Gadsby said Thursday he is interested in coaching only the Red Wings, not a minor league club.

Sid Abel, currently serving as both coach and general manager of the Wings, will devote his full time to managing duties.

Gadsby has been part of Detroit's unique coaching system for several seasons in which Abel appointed Gadsby, Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Marcel Pronovost, who was traded last summer to Toronto Maple Leafs, as assistant coaches.

"I'd keep the same system," said Gadsby. "Two or three minds are better than one. Gordie, Alex, Sid and myself would continue to work together."

"I don't think I'm going to play any more," Gadsby also talked with Abel after Thursday night's game in Detroit but would not confirm reports he will become coach. He said only that he talked with Abel and planned to go home to Edmonton for two weeks before returning to Detroit to continue discussions concerning his hockey future.

Athletic Scholarships 'Vicious'

High-Pressure Sport Hit

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—High-pressure college sport was criticized severely here Thursday at the opening session of the Centennial Recreation, Sports and Physical Education Conference.

Dr. Jay Shivers, supervisor of the recreation service department at the University of Connecticut, told the 200 delegates he would abolish intercollegiate competition.

"We've got to decide whether we're going to concentrate on academic efforts or entertainment," Dr. Shivers said. "If it's to be entertainment, then let's really go. Let's hire professional coaches, buy ourselves a team, have it put in the school colors and tell it to go out there and win for the glory of the alma mater."

"College sports are highly commercial, hypocritical and distasteful. I hate the word 'coach'."

He described as "trivial" stadiums, coaches, equipment, bleachers and those sacred game areas on which no person can walk." He said one such area was a multi-million-dollar, beautifully-turfed football field owned by a southern American college and used only five times a year.

Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, former director of physical education for New York State, said he approves of inter-collegiate sport, but said athletic scholarships were "vicious."

"It's like paying under the table. It teaches lies and cheating. It's always been a losing proposition," Magee said. "If the Dominion association can't handle it financially, not many teams would want to go back on their own."

Grants from the physical fitness council have largely maintained the competition for the past two years.

Since Canada is committed to field a team in the 1967 Pan-American Games in Winnipeg, it was decided that this year's grant should go to finance a round-robin tournament in Winnipeg, Aug. 28 to Sept. 3.

Each province will be invited to send a representative team with the Canadian side to be picked after the round-robin series.

No decision has yet been made on how the B.C. team will be selected.

Blows to national pride have been falling frequently of late. There was Victor Spencer, Gerda Munsinger, the CBC—and now they're discontinuing the Canadian soccer championship.

But not many tears are being shed over the demise of the national competition which was announced by Vancouver's Dave Fryatt, past president of the Canadian Soccer Football Association.

Revived for the past two years and currently held by Vancouver Firefighters, the Dominion championship has always been difficult to finance.

Pacific Coast Soccer League director Wally Milligan said, "The Dominion Cup, in my opinion, has always been kind of a washout because the club in the west always has to hold its players through the summer and then go east in the fall."

And Victoria United manager Fred Magee was not particularly grieved to learn that the competition was to be discontinued.

"It's always been a losing proposition," Magee said. "If Bob McLaren has been moving around.

McLaren, former track star at Oak Bay High School, is in his third year on an athletic scholarship at Oregon State University at Corvallis, Ore.

Taking commerce and a member of the OSU Beavers track team, McLaren has visited Detroit, Berkeley and Palo Alto, Calif., in the course of his track and field season.

He has been running the 440 yards, the 440 relay, and recently has taken up the 440-yard hurdles and has been doing some high jumping.

McLaren, who runs at a meet in Seattle May 14, will likely return to Victoria for the summer when he completes his semester in the middle of June.

While their main opposition is stumbling along, San Francisco Giants are slowly pulling away in the National League baseball race.

Having just swept a three-game series from Los Angeles Dodgers, the Giants defeated St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2, Friday night.

Coupled with Pittsburgh's amazing overtime loss to Philadelphia Phillies, 8-7, the Giants' win boosted San Francisco 1½ games ahead of second-place Pirates, and four up on the Dodgers, 7-1 losers to Cincinnati Reds.

For the Giants, Jim Hart tripled two runs across in the first inning, then scored on Julian Javier's error. That's all

The Pirates had taken a 7-3 lead with four runs in their half of the 11th, but Phillies came back with five singles. Jackie Brandt scored the winning run, barely beating Manny Mota's throw to the plate.

At Manager Level

Robinson says it may be years before the major leagues have a Negro manager because club owners generally are "narrow minded and have no guts."

"I know of only one owner who might have the courage to do it, and that's Horace Stoneham of San Francisco Giants," the man who broke baseball's color line said Friday.

"Gabe Paul of Cleveland, I believe, would give it some thought. But the others? They're a narrow-minded group. They don't understand the thinking of the majority."

Robinson praised Red Auerbach in naming Bill Russell, a Negro, as coach of Boston Celtics in the National Basketball Association.

Robinson said there were several Negroes capable of making creditable major league managers.

"Hilton Howard of the Yankees looks like a natural. Bill White of Philadelphia might be great. I have great admiration for Ernie Banks and Wes Covington of Chicago Cubs."

How about Robinson himself, now an aide to Governor Rockefeller of New York and general manager of the new Brooklyn Dodgers?

Rain Finishes Cricket Match

WORCESTER, England (Reuters)—The touring West Indian cricketers' opening first-class match of their current visit against the English county champions, Worcestershire, Friday, was abandoned because of rain on the third and final day.

The score up to the time was Worcestershire 206 for seven wickets.

Chicago only one hit—a second-inning single by J. C. Martin.

Norm Cash strangled the first power, scoring McLain with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly to deep left, in the eighth inning.

California overcame an early 3-0 New York lead to hand veteran pitcher Whitey Ford his third defeat against no wins.

Tips You Off

"Could you estimate the cheapest way a family of four could vacation in Hawaii?"

All the islands have some fairly inexpensive hotels that don't have enough money to advertise widely. Hawaii Visitors Bureau, Honolulu will send you a list for any island. Better get folders from the hotel, too. Some of them are pretty rundown.

Nobody seems to think of camping. But there are excellent camping grounds with miles of beach almost to yourself. A foldout camper sleeping four rents from $65 a week. Includes everything — just bring your toothbrush — linen, blankets, soap, outdoor stove with charcoal, plates, silver, matches.

Hertz (on all islands) rents Falcons for $50 a week plus 10 cents a mile. (Distances are short. Mileage won't be much.) For folders on campers write Camping Service of Hawaii, Haleiwa, Oahu, Hawaii.

You shop in little general stores in plantation towns. It runs about $6.50 a day for food for four people.

"The town you were trying to remember in Mexico — where they make guitars — is Paracho. Off Highway 15 and 25 miles on the road to Uruapan."

Many thanks. Uruapan is worth the visit for their excellent lacquer work, too.

"We hear all sorts of frightening stories of food in Mexico and what it may do to you..."

In Mexico City hotels and big restaurants I eat everything. Raw salads, fruit, water. In country hotels, I avoid the salads and eat the fruit if I can peel it. Drink bottled water — Tehuacan, not carbonated. Is good. Milk is chancy. I duck it even if it says pasteurized.

When I had a house there, I bought in the Indian markets. But we peeled everything we could. And soaked the lettuce in water with a Halozon tablet added. (Your doctor might have something better now.)

The country does have some risks. But thousands go in and have no trouble at all.

"Will we have any trouble driving our car in Mexico?"

Stay on major highways — back roads will jolt the bolts out of your car. Don't drive at night. They're pretty casual about dumping a load of road repair gravel in the middle of the road and not marking it. Mind the curves. Often there's a string of burros around the bend.

Gasoline is good. Be sure to get the best — P-100 or Gasolmex. The ordinary stuff keeps your car firing after you've turned off the key. May blow a piston, too. Watch out for rocks on the highway. Stalled trucks block up their wheels and drive away and leave them. It's 60 miles per hour country at best. And 50 is better.

"Would you suggest the best place to buy perfume in Paris?"

It's so competitive that I think places are about the same. Use traveller's cheques and you get a discount. If they don't offer it, ask for it. (No discount if you use dollars. But you get it on your personal cheque.)

Guerlain perfumes are sold only in Guerlain shops. Other stores sell all brands. I usually go to Freddy's at 10 Rue Auber.

Strays Live Among Ancient Splendor

Cats Take Over Rome's Ruins

By CIMA STAR

ROME (GNS) — The ancient Romans were builders. Wherever the famous legions went the masons followed building aqueducts, roads, monuments, temples.

So superb was their craftsmanship that their relics remain today, almost 2,000 years later, to astound modern man and remind him of his cultural heritage.

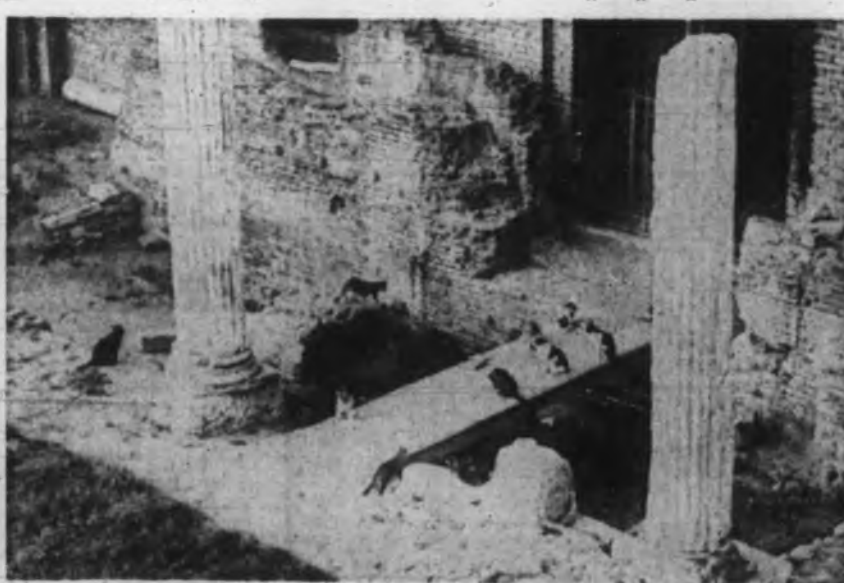

One thing the ancient Romans could not know, however, was that the artifacts of their passing would become the enduring home of stray cats.

From the spectacular forum where Julius Caesar built his temples in homage to the goddess Minerva to a small amphitheatre in the north-east edifices of the peninsula in Trieste, the ruins of ancient Rome have become the shelter for thousands of felines.

More than 60 sleek, sleek cats reign over the ancient ruins of the Foro Romano, one of the Eternal City's proudest monuments.

They are called the "Abandoned Ones" by the Romans. Many are strays that have taken the narrow alleys of the city, searching for scraps of food, hunted by dogs and pursued by mischievous small boys, until they found refuge among the symbols of their city's greatest glory.

Others are brought here as kittens by families too poor to feed even one more small mouth. But most of them were born here, and know no other home.

It is a comfortable place to live. The cats find shelter from the winter rains under the Arch of Constantine and lounge in the remains of the House of the Vestal Virgins.

They bask in the warmth of the Roman sun among the ruins of the Temple of Julius Caesar.

In reality, these proud animals are not abandoned, thanks to the sacrifice and generosity of women like Jolanda Barberis, Envy. There are large areas of grass in which to romp and play, trees to climb and rocks and stones to scamper around. Warm caves provide refuge from the cold and there are ancient pillars to recline upon in the noonday sun.

Rome is a benevolent city; she cherishes her cats as she does her monuments. There is no fear of the city pound.

Instead, the city provides a woman to regularly visit the ancient haunts of the cats.

She brings food; doctors those who are ill; takes saucers of milk to expectant mothers. And she sees that the older, tougher Toms do not usurp all the food from their younger, weaker siblings. Every cat, down to the smallest, gets his share of dinner.

To the cats, at least, the glory that was Rome remains.

Spencer Hearings Wound Up

By H. E. JONES — Royal Commission (RCMP) — Royal Commission hearings into the Spencer affair ended Friday, leaving on the public record allegations of Russian spy activities in Canada rivalled only by those revealed by Soviet cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko in the 1940s.

All that remains is for Mr. Justice Duffin Wells to weigh the evidence and make his report. He said Friday as two days of hearings ended here, he expects to have his report in the government's hands within a month.

The commission also sat three days in Ottawa in April. The Ontario Supreme Court Justice was appointed by Prime Minister Pearson following a furore in Parliament over the case of the late George Victor Spencer. He is to determine whether the 62-year-old English-born Spencer, linked in an RCMP-painted picture of Russian spy intrigue, was fairly treated in being summarily dismissed without pension from his Vancouver postal clerk's job.

Highlight

A highlight of the case was the release here of a 99-page, partly-censored document containing evidence by Assistant Commissioner W. H. Kelly, the force's director of security and intelligence.

Mr. Kelly's report told of:

- Clandestine meetings between Spencer and Russian agents;
- Information passed to the Russians on farms for sale near the U.S. border;
- Information about U.S. troops stationed in Canada;
- Photos and data on the Trans Mountain pipeline which feeds oil to the B.C. lower mainland and Washington state;
- And, even, of the gravestone names of persons long dead and information on business and schools now defunct.

Cover Names

The gravestone names and information on defunct schools and businesses, it was suggested, was to provide legitimate cover names and background for Russian agents which could not be readily checked.

The document also contained a lengthy statement taken by the RCMP from Spencer, in which the dismissed postal clerk admitted repeated contact with Russian agents, trips to Ottawa under assumed names and use of code messages to set up meetings.

'Distortion'

Forest Industry Rapped by IWA

Victoria IWA president Murray Drew has accused forest industry employers' representatives of distorting the story coming from their talks on a new contract.

Coast wood products companies refused to make a wage offer to their 26,000 employees, said Mr. Drew, who was a member of the IWA negotiating committee.

Mr. Drew said union negotiators asked Forest Industrial

In his statement given the RCMP last May, Spencer said at first he could not see "anything that I had done was of a subversive character" but after the third of seven trips to Ottawa to deliver information to the Russians, he began to suspect "there was a something wrong and I was maybe being used as an agent."

Wanted Trip

Spencer also admitted being a member of the Communist party, from which he was expelled in an argument over policy but which he later tried unsuccessfully to rejoin. His relations with the Russians, he said, were carried out mainly in the hope of getting a trip to Russia.

Spencer was found dead in his Vancouver home April 9. A coroner's jury decided his death was natural, caused by thrombosis possibly brought on by the aftermath of surgery the previous year for removal of a cancerous left lung.

The Vancouver hearings saw a clash between Commissioner Wells and lawyer Harry Rankin, representing the Spencer estate. Mr. Rankin repeatedly attacked the evidence given in the statement by Assistant Commissioner Kelly and said he had made Spencer's activities appear sinister when in fact they were not.

Easy to Get

Much of the information he had been asked to give or had given the Russians could have easily been obtained through ordinary public channels. In some cases he had told the Russians this.

He demanded that persons who had given information on which Mr. Kelly's report was based be subpoenaed before the commission. But Mr. Justice Wells refused. He said this would involve the security of Canada and "the security of this country is of more importance than the publicity of this hearing."

Mr. Rankin then said he would sit in only as an observer. He declined an opportunity to cross-examine RCMP Sgt. M. G. Low, one of the officers who took the Spencer statement. Mr. Justice Wells remarked that because of this refusal, he could only assume Mr. Rankin accepted the statement of his client about espionage activity.

Mr. Rankin, in the closing hours of the hearing, made a summation, saying Mr. Kelly had made Spencer appear as a sinister figure, particularly with respect to availability of farms in the Sumas area along the U.S. border.

The fact was—and Spencer had told the Russians this according to Sgt. Low—that such information was readily available from real estate firms and through newspaper for sale ads.

Not Justified

He said Spencer's role did not justify the government's use of section 50 of the Civil Service Act by which an employee can be fired without a hearing and with loss of pension rights.

Commission counsel J. J. Robinette, in summing up, said 200 pages of secret evidence of the RCMP taken in Ottawa was the key to the decision Mr. Justice Wells would have to make about treatment of Spencer.

"... To say that he has been unfairly treated is an argument I fail to understand," Mr. Robinette said. "The government would have been delinquent in its duty if these facts were right and it did not exercise its powers."

Mr. Justice Wells said the 200 pages of secret evidence taken in Ottawa and which formed the basis for Assistant Commissioner Kelly's report and his allegation that Spencer's activity fitted in a carefully-plotted program of Russian espionage, never will be made public.

If it were this would disclose the counter-espionage systems used by the RCMP in the interests of national security.

Dairy Policy Under Fire

Hundreds of Creameries Threatened

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of creameries could be forced out of business by the new federal dairy policy, Harold Danforth (PC-Kent) told the Commons agriculture committee Friday.

The Ontario MP said the dairy policy "in the name of doing a tremendous amount of good" but if it is continued in its present form, "hundreds of creameries will be forced out of business."

Creameries, he said, are an important segment of the dairy industry. He termed the policy one instance where the conception was sound, but the result had a "hole" in it.

Agriculture department officials had told an earlier meeting of the committee the new dairy policy encourages farmers to ship milk to processing plants, not separated cream to creameries. The policy, in effect since April 1, guarantees farmers $4 a hundredweight for their manufacturing milk.

Mr. Danforth's creamery company is part of a lengthy claim that Agriculture Minister Greene had failed to touch on the "fast-changing patterns" of agriculture and other important matters in his earlier policy statement to the committee.

Needed, Mr. Danforth said, was the government view on production goals, the shift of labor from farm to factory, on how to keep young agronomists in agriculture and so on. Major principles should be dealt with by the committee.

Agriculture, he said, "can no longer stagger along with the government making patchwork."

attempts to keep the industry together.

Mr. Jorgenson, a Manitoba farmer, told Mr. Greene, an Eastern lawyer, that raising prices for farm products is no use if suppliers of goods to farmers are allowed to raise prices as they see fit.

Suppliers, he said, have one philosophy: "Take all the market will bear."

He said the high cost of land and farm machinery makes it "virtually impossible" for a young man to establish himself in farming. Mr. Jorgenson added he had no answer to the problem.

H. W. Herridge (NDP-Kootenay West) said the dairy policy has received the general approval of milk producers.

A British Columbia tree-farmer, Mr. Herridge thought it was time for the federal government to attempt to develop a single formula acceptable to the provinces to govern trespassers on farm lands.

Meeting is sponsored by the Prospect Lake and District Community Association.

The question of piped water was raised several years ago but turned down by the local community association because residents wish to have both water and new sewers brought in at the same time.

Members of Saanich council are expected to attend Wednesday to answer questions from the floor. Other topics to be discussed include sanitary sewers rather than septic tanks, and the Hartland Road garbage dump.

Meeting is to start at 7:30 p.m. in Sparrow Road hall.

Water Plan Topic

Residents of the Prospect Lake area of Saanich will hold a public meeting Wednesday to discuss water supplies and the possibility of bringing piped water into the vicinity.

Handicapped Group Pledged Donation

Central Saanich council is to contribute $138 to the Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped. The contribution was approved at a council meeting Wednesday. The group has requested $8,000 in contributions from the Greater Victoria municipalities.

Council also gave tentative approval to a $90 grant to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Refund Policy On Pensions 'Morally Wrong'

OTTAWA (CP)—Still smarting from the income tax bite themselves, MPs got in their licks at Revenue Minister Benson Friday as the departmental spending estimates of the government's tax collector came up for debate in the Commons.

Richard A. Bell (PC-Carleton), former immigration minister, said it is "morally wrong" for the revenue department not to refund overpayments by employers under the Canada Pension Plan.

Many employees, particularly in construction trades, held several jobs during a year. Each employer had to pay his full share towards the pension plan—provided more than the $600 minimum earnings were paid out.

Although the employee received a tax rebate for his overpayments, the employer did not. "The minister has taken a very casual approach to this problem,"

Replied before the House approved his department's 1966-67 estimates of $94,565,800, Mr. Benson said no simple way has been found to calculate these refunds correctly.

The overpayments represent about $3,000,000 in a total of about $300,000,000 channelled into the pension fund.

Mr. Benson praised revenue employees and noted the soaring increase in the volume of tax returns—6,700,000 for the 1965 tax year.

Conversion to computers and data-processing equipment had reduced the cost of handling $100 to 86 cents from $2.16 a half-dozen years ago.

The tax debate followed Commons approval of the automotive trade agreement between Canada and the United States.

J. A. Monaghan (Ind-Trois-Rivieres) and Real Caouette, Creditiste leader, criticized the department's insistence on complete receipts for all donations to charitable and religious organizations.

It is unreasonable, said Mr. Monaghan, "to oblige the clergy to supply receipts to everyone who makes a gift." The basic $100 deduction could be increased to include such donations without receipts.

Robert McCleave (PC-Hallifax) said a man who must hire help while his wife is in hospital should be allowed a deduction for expenses.

Republic Pledged By Separatists

MONTREAL (CP)—If elected to form the Quebec government June 5, the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale (National Independence Rally) would establish in Quebec a democratic republic which would assure the equality of all citizens and respect for all beliefs, and of which the official language would be French.

Pierre Bourgault, leader of the Rassemblement, made the statement Friday at a press conference called to announce the party's campaign platform for the provincial general election. He described it as "the only really democratic program presented by a party in Quebec."

CONTROL

If called upon to form a government, the RIN would reclaim for Quebec all the powers necessary for the implementation of its plan for the province. These would include taxation and fiscal powers, control over credit, the banking system, trade and immigration.

Le Rassemblement would draft an economic plan for the province providing for government control, through Crown corporations, of all public services. It would seek to guarantee full employment.

In the field of education, the party would make tuition free at all levels and would make school attendance compulsory up to age 18. However, public schools entitled to government grants would be "exclusively French."

LABRADOR

Mr. Bourgault added that a RIN government will not recognize the Privy Council decision that made Labrador part of Newfoundland. It would assume full control of Labrador and develop its resources.

The separatist party already has nominated candidates in 42 of Quebec's 108 constituencies.

B.C., Alberta Farms Seek Imported Help

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia and Alberta have joined Ontario in seeking imported farm workers to help with the harvest, Labor Minister Marchand told the Commons Friday.

The government recently announced a program to allow West Indian workers to come in this fall to help harvest crops in southwestern Ontario.

He told Creditable Leader Caouette similar requests have come from the two western provinces for hands to help with the fruit and vegetable harvest.

Gifted Forgotten By School System

By BILL STAVDAL

PARKSVILLE — Gifted children are the forgotten ones in today's school system, a University of Victoria education specialist charged Friday.

"They are getting a very bad deal," said Dr. Steinn W. Steinson, a special lecturer on gifted children.

He spoke before a seminar of Vancouver Island school trustees at the Island Hall Hotel. The three-day conference is examining student counselling and the problem of the exceptional child, both gifted and handicapped.

RETARDED

Dr. Steinson said school boards were preoccupied with caring for retarded and exceptional children—youths with any one of a variety of problems.

"I have no objection to paying attention to dull students," he said, "but I object to the fact that the other (gifted) children are being neglected—and they are being neglected in the worst possible way."

"They are just as retarded mentally as the people at the bottom of the ladder, because they are not getting the education they deserve," said Dr. Steinson.

"There are literally thousands of children on your farms and in small towns who are gifted. But after a while they are lost."

Dr. Steinson said three per cent of the population fell in the "gifted" category.

Ignorance and indifference by the public left them condemned to an education which did not develop their potential to the fullest, Dr. Steinson declared. "They are the forgotten children in our school system. They should be the brightest stars in our crown."

Canadian Poles Will Celebrate

TORONTO (CP)—The 1,000th anniversary of the coming of Christianity to Poland will be celebrated Sunday by some 325,000 Canadians of Polish extraction. High masses in churches across Canada will mark the inauguration of a seven-month program, which has been six years in the planning.

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan has agreed to lend Pakistan $30,000,000 for the third five-year development plan, the Japanese foreign ministry announced.

Millions of Cars Recalled Due to Defects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Abraham Ribicoff reported Friday that in the last six years, 8,700,225 American automobiles have been called back by the manufacturers due to some defect.

In a statement prior to making public information from the American auto industry on defects in their cars during the last six years, the Connecticut Democrat said the total auto production for that period was slightly more than 47,000,000 according to industry statistics.

He added:

"Thus in the last six years 18.5 per cent of the cars produced by the four major auto companies have been defective in some respect."

NOT ALL 'SAFETY'

He noted, however, that "it should be made clear many of these defects were not safety related."

Ribicoff as chairman of a U.S. Senate subcommittee investigating highway safety had asked Detroit's big four to provide him with information on their recall campaigns involving certain auto defects and deficiencies. Ribicoff praised General Motors, the Ford Motor Company, the Chrysler Corp and American Motors for their "immediate and co-operative" response.

LESSONS LEARNED

He said there are lessons in the material provided by the automakers and one lesson has already been learned by the manufacturers.

"As a result of the hearings on traffic safety and this inquiry the auto industry is revising and tightening all its recall procedures."

Another lesson in the statistics, Ribicoff said, is that the information "shatters once and for all the myth that accidents are invariably caused by bad driving."

New Trial Ordered In Car Case

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A new trial was ordered by the Minnesota Supreme Court today in a $100,000 suit against Chrysler Corp., over a broken automobile power steering unit.

Hardware Mutual Insurance Company, claiming a defective shaft caused a fatal accident, sued the auto manufacturer and won the case in Hennepin County District Court. Chrysler appealed.

A 1951 Chrysler Imperial owned by a St. Paul distributor and driven by an employee was involved in a collision Dec. 14, 1954. The driver of the second car was killed. The Chrysler driver and his wife were seriously injured.

A broken sector shaft was found in the Chrysler's power steering unit and the insurance firm sued Chrysler to recover about $100,000 Hardware Mutual paid in death and injury claims. The Supreme Court said factory records cast doubt on whether the shaft actually had been supplied by Chrysler and it ordered a new trial on that point.

sentenced Michael Kelly on a charge of wounding Robert Edward Anderson, 24, of Surrey last Oct. 23.

Anderson suffered two severe stab wounds outside his home after drinking with Kelly.

Crown prosecutor D. A. Hogarth cited Kelly's criminal record including robbery with violence, assault causing bodily harm and possessing a concealed weapon.

He said Kelly had a good work record but in view of the tendency to violence a substantial sentence should be considered.

Mr. Justice Rutan warned Kelly that his pattern of life could end in his being charged as a habitual criminal. He said Kelly's turning to violence when aroused or frustrated was a pattern that was all too prevalent these days.

Fire Risk High In B.C. Interior

Three of British Columbia's five forest districts are already facing serious fire problems, with the 1966 fire season only one week old.

A B.C. Forest Service report issued Friday, during a day of steady drizzling in the Greater Victoria area, stated that low April rainfall over central Vancouver Island and cool, dry conditions over the B.C. Interior plateau had brought "high hazard conditions" to these areas.

The fire hazard, however, was still rated as "low" for the Vancouver forest district (which includes the Island) and the Prince Rupert forest district.

Twenty-one fires occurred Thursday afternoon alone in the Kamloops district, where 30 were already burning. The hazard was also high in the Prince George and Nelson districts, although no serious trouble was reported.

There were 151 new fires during the week, of which 77 were extinguished and 74 were still burning and firefighting costs were estimated at $5,850.

New principals Henderson, Hunter, Durrant, Boldt and Sullivan

Five School Officials Elevated to Principals

Appointment of five new principals was announced Friday by John Porteous, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board.

All from within the district's teaching staff, they are:

Robert Hunter, 3527 Redwood, who will become principal of Reynolds Road junior-senior high school when it opens in Saanich in September, 1967.

Born in Victoria, Mr. Hunter has taught in this school district for 18 years and has been vice-principal of Mount View senior high for the past four years.

Peter Boldt, 16 King George Terrace, who becomes principal of Lanark junior high, will succeed Rudyard T. Kipling who retires this spring.

Wilfred L. Durrant, 3452 Henderson Road, appointed to head Hillcrest elementary school, now under construction at Gordon Head.

Mr. Durrant has been vice-principal of Craigflower elementary for two years, and has been in the district for 12 years.

Donald G. Henderson, 4328 Cedar Hill, was named principal of the rebuilt Bank Street elementary school. Mr. Henderson is currently vice-principal of Oaklands elementary school.

E. W. N. Sullivan, 3581 Doncaster, will head Victor Street school for the retarded when it opens June 1.

Mr. Sullivan is now teacher-in-charge of Joan Crescent school for retarded.

Appointed vice-principal of Lamson Street elementary school is Gordon H. Smith, 855 Ferrie, now a teacher at Marigold elementary school.

The school board deferred a decision on appointing a principal for the new Christie Point elementary-junior high school.

View Royal Votes Today

View Royal voters will have a choice of two Regional Services Board candidates when they go to the polls at View Royal Elementary School, 218 Helmcken Road, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. today.

Running for office are A. E. Beasley, 260 Island Highway, and Harry E. Turner, 2785 Shoreline Drive.

Gorge Official Says Sewer-Need Comments at Odds

'Edgelow's Memory Slipping'

Geoffrey Edgelow's memory is slipping, according to an official of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association.

Victoria's acting mayor has apparently suffered a lapse of memory since he spoke as a panelist last summer at a public meeting held in Craigflower School on the subject of pollution, association vice-president David Southall claimed Friday.

"At that meeting, Mr. Edgelow admitted the sewage disposal in this area was inadequate, and for effect noted the sewer outfall at Clover Point in particular."

"ADEQUATE"

"But this week the acting mayor is reported to have said, 'We have an adequate sewer system, paid for by our own taxpayers, and our system is nowhere near capacity.'"

"If the sewer system is far from working to capacity, why are all the additional overload outlets necessary?"

"In my opinion," the vice-president said, "it can't be adequate if they need overload discharge outlets."

FURTHER DEBATE

"I don't believe there should be any attempts made to cover up the inadequacies of our sewer system," he added.

The executive of the 500-member association will meet Monday night to discuss further sewage disposal in this area.

"Sewage disposal could be classified in importance to a community as high as electricity and the supply of domestic water."

BOARD LEVEL

"I'd like to see it placed on the regional board level, which would cover all municipalities," Mr. Southall said.

"This would be a practical approach to the problem."

Engineers and other specialists have been studying the district's sewage disposal needs for more than a year, and the findings of the study are expected about the end of this month.

"COSTLY, BUT —"

It has been reported that a major system for Saanich Peninsula, Colwood, and Greater Victoria would cost $23,000,000.

Mr. Southall agreed that the sewer system would be a heavy cost to taxpayers.

"It may cost $23,000,000 now, but it could cost $30,000,000 or even $40,000,000 10 years from now."

HEALTH HAZARD?

"We have to stare reality in the face," he said. "How can we expect to continue the rapid expansion in all the municipalities, without proper sewage disposal and still not face a health hazard?"

"How much is a person's health or life worth? If the lack of a sewer system could lead to a health hazard, then I do not think cost of installing such a system is any factor."

COST-SHARING

"The municipalities will have to get together and come to a practical cost-sharing basis for the project," he said. "In my opinion, they all knew it was necessary, or they never would have had the sewer survey made."

He said the municipalities all worked together and shared the costs of having the survey undertaken, and he hoped that when the results were made public they all wouldn't back out and let the matter end with the survey.

HATS OFF

Mr. Southall said the association lauded the start of the Gorge beautification.

"We certainly take our hats off to Saanich in this endeavor," he said.

Warbler Replaces Moaner

New sound on Victoria streets is "warbling" alarm fitted experimentally to two fire department vehicles in place of regular spinning-drum type. Molly Mullins, 1841 Ashgrove, and Lavonne Gunn, 436 Dallas, fire department secretaries, attest to the "yelp" of the electronic tone generator alarm. — (William E. John)

Half-Sunken Whaler Given 30-Day 'Stay'

Unless someone thinks of something to assist in the salvaging of the whaler Green, her days are numbered.

Acting under the Navigable

Waters Protection Act, the department of transport has sent a letter to owner Max Lohbrunner asking what he intends to do with the half-sunken Green, which is lying on her side by the city garbage wharf.

Mr. Lohbrunner has been given 30 days to state his intentions.

The 10-foot Green—56 years old and looking it—rolled and partially sank on April 4, and since that time nothing in the ship's position has improved.

Mr. Lohbrunner reckoned the wash of a passing tug hauled a boom log against the ship's hull and she sprang a leak.

Cheap Batteries Peril to Children

Hundreds of cheap flashlight batteries sold last Christmas to power children's toys have reached a state that could imperil a child's eyes, a Victoria father said Friday.

The batteries, made in Hong Kong, do not have the metal jackets that enclose most types, and at least some of them have started to leak acid.

Ted Calder of 4030 Bracfoot reported that his four-year-old daughter, Sharon, had smeared some of the acid on herself.

Royal Jubilee Hospital's poison control centre said the acid wasn't strong enough to harm skin but could cause unpleasant burns to an eye.

Divers End Search

Navy divers called off their search of Todd Inlet Friday after failing to find any trace of hospital orderly Gordon Wellwood.

The 47-year-old View Royal man has been missing since he went out in his boat on the Brentwood side of Saanich Inlet Wednesday evening.

Naval divers started their search Thursday when they found Mr. Wellwood's eyeglasses only a short distance from the rock where his boat was moored.

They resumed their search at dawn Friday, but found nothing. A dinghy used by Mr. Wellwood in getting out of his boat was found floating upright in the inlet.

He lived with his father, Roy, at 529 View Royal. His mother died three months ago.

Frezenburg To Be Recalled

Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Association will hold a church parade at 11 a.m. Sunday at St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church in Esquimalt to commemorate the Battle of Frezenburg on May 8, 1915.

Mink

Fuss

Puzzle

Mrs. Florence Courville can't see why there is any fuss about the mink farm proposed for her property on Bennett Road in Metchosin.

Metchosin residents are objecting to a rezoning application for a mink farm on the grounds that it can lead to pollution of Witty's Lagoon and the depreciation of land values.

Mrs. Courville is selling 87 acres to an unnamed buyer.

"The creek which is claimed would carry polluted water to Witty's Lagoon dried up in the summer," she said.

"There is water in the winter, but most of the runoff is from higher up the mountain. At that time of year there would not be any pollution because water can only become contaminated in hot summer weather."

"IDEAL PROPERTY"

"If anyone could object, it would be my son, who owns the adjoining 10 acres, and he has no objections. It is ideal property for a mink farm."

"The mink pens would be located at least half a mile from Happy Valley Road. It is all treed, so that would prevent odors being carried to any other houses," she said.

Insane Man Killed 'Devil'

By BARRY JOHNSON

Oral Roberts, Billy Graham, God and the devil were read into evidence at the Supreme Court trial Friday of Robert MacDonald, when the mental patient was found not guilty of murder.

A 12-man assize jury was advised by Mr. Justice Thomas Brown, Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm and defence counsel Robert Hutchison that the proper verdict was not guilty by reason of insanity.

Mr. Justice Brown went so far as to take the unusual action of advising the jury of what his order would be if MacDonald was found not guilty of the non-capital murder of 44-year-old Frederick Dyer of 1036 Caledonia, Sept. 27, 1965.

"CONFINEMENT"

Mr. Justice Brown's order was that MacDonald be retained in "strict confinement" in Riverview Hospital.

Mr. Hutchison took the unusual action of submitting an exhibit of "admissions . . . dispensing with proof."

"These facts are admitted by counsel for the accused for the purpose of dispensing with proof thereof."

"That the accused is not unfit on account of insanity to stand trial."

TRAGEDY

"That at the City of Victoria . . . on the 27th day of September, 1965, the accused Robert MacDonald stabbed Frederick Dyer in his chest with a knife as a direct result of which the said Frederick Dyer died the same day."

The tone of the trial was set by Mr. Justice Brown immediately the jury was empanelled — only three were challenged, all by the defence.

Said Mr. Justice Brown: "Although this is going to be a very short trial, and although it involves a terrible tragedy, it should not tax you overmuch."

RANTY

The defence entered no defence and the judge several times reminded the jury the case was "not contentious."

The defence and the Crown proposed to the jury that its only duty was to rule as to whether MacDonald was insane at the time of the murder. This was fortified in the judge's instructions.

The only witness, two psychiatrists, were called by the Crown.

Dr. J. C. Thomas and Dr. R. L. Whitman, who had both examined MacDonald shortly after the murder and immediately before the trial, testified that the accused was fit to stand trial but that, at the time of the murder, he was incapable of appreciating the nature or quality of the act or differentiating between right and wrong.

Each said MacDonald suffered from schizophrenia of a paranoid type.

DEVEL

This force urged him to seek and destroy the devil.

Prosecutor Lindholm read to the jury a "statement of facts" outlining MacDonald's mental state.

Burns-Hooper Wedding

Honeymoon at Harrison

St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Sandwich, decorated with daffodils, narcissus and red tulips, was the scene of a colorful wedding when Heather Mary Hooper and Kevin Burns were united in marriage by the Rev. W. J. Lunny in a double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hooper, Sandwick, and the groom is the son of Mrs. F. E. Burns, Courtenay, and the late Mr. John Burns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a creamy white tulle suit worn with a pale blue silk blouse featuring a round smoked neckline. Her lacy pillbox hat was trimmed with white veiling and topped with a tiny bow of corded ribbon. She wore a single strand of cultured pearls, a gift from the groom, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Bridesmaid, Mrs. H. F. Dooyeweerd, sister of the bride, wore a turquoise blue silk knit suit with a pink blouse and pink flowered hat. Her accessories were white, and her bouquet was of pink carnations.

Best man was Mr. Terry Burns, brother of the groom, and ushers were Tim Burns and Brian Hooper, younger brothers of the bride.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony the sacrament of Holy Communion was administered to the bride and groom by Rev. Lunny.

Miss Jane Bowie, organist, played the Wedding March as the bride entered the church and O' Perfect Love during signing of the register.

The bride and groom and attendants were piped from the vestry and out of the church by pipers Sandy Stewart and the bride's brother, Brian Hooper. Members of the Courtenay Bowmen formed a guard of honor with their bows as the couple left the church.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from an older sister who was happy because the second grade teacher told her little brother there was no Santa Claus. The same thing happened to our little boy, only it was the third grade teacher who robbed our youngster of his fantasy.

Our son was terribly unhappy when he came home from school. I turned to the World Book Encyclopedia for help and found it.

Santa Claus WAS a real person. He was the Bishop of Myra, who lived in an ancient town in Turkey around 300 A.D. His name was Saint Nicholas, Saint Nicholas was the kindest and most generous Bishop known to the world. He started the practice of giving presents to the needy.

The Dutch called him Sinter Klaas and the settlers brought the custom to the new world. The English picked it up from them. So you see, it isn't a lie after all. — MOTHER OF THREE.

Dear Mother: Thanks for your lovely letter. I'll tell Virginia when she comes in.

Dear Ann Landers: The woman whose husband is driving her nuts with his self-taught cello screeching has a couple of things going for her. She only has to put up with the racket when he is awake and at home. Then too, there's a chance he might get tired of the cello and quit. I should have it so good.

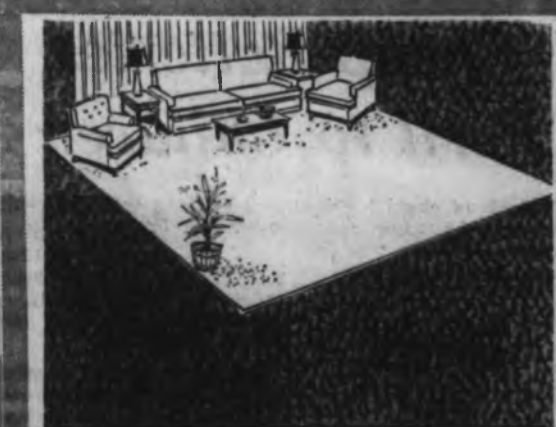

My husband has been collecting clocks for over 20 years. We says his wife won't give him a divorce.

The kids at school know my aunt and this man are not married and it is very embarrassing. I told mom how I felt and she said the main reason she and Dad bought the house was to improve my social standing and that I am ungrateful.

I was happier when we lived in the old house and I would gladly move back if it meant getting rid of this pair. Am I wrong to feel this way? — HEAD DOWN.

Dear Head: You are not wrong but I doubt that grinning about it will help any. Make no apologies to your friends. Any one who has sense knows full well you are not responsible for that shameful set-up.

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. G. D. W. Cameron of Ottawa was elected president of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada at the first session of the annual meeting today.

Dr. Cameron, a vice-president of the order since 1960, was deputy minister of health from 1946 to 1965.

For Children

Show, Tea Nets $500

McPherson Playhouse was the setting recently of spring tea and fashion show sponsored by Miriam Temple No. 2, Daughters of the Nile. Mrs. George R. Pearkes officially opened the tea and welcomed some 400 guests.

More than $500 was realized at the successful affair in aid of crippled children.

Mrs. R.M. Williams, queen of the temple, and Mrs. J. A. Parker, general convener, and Mrs. J. Harris, co-convener, greeted the guests.

After the tea hour spring fashions from Miss Frith's were modeled by members of the Temple, who were Mrs. R. I. Cornie, Mrs. B. R. Daggett, Mrs. T. W. Gibbons, Mrs. C. M. Jasper, Mrs. A. Landels, Mrs. J. Rogers, Mrs. J. Watson and Miss Barbara Landels.

The show was commented by Mr. W. Sinclair and Mr. D. Nash.

Background organ music was played throughout the afternoon by Miss Leah Rose.

Conveners for the tea and home-bake sale were Mrs. C. J. Smith and Mrs. E. Moore.

Day of Debutante Dropped in Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—The office of Nova Scotia's lieutenant-governor has announced there will be no St. Andrew's Ball this November. It means the day of the debutante is gone from Halifax.

No one seems to care. And no one is surprised, except, perhaps, that it took so long.

The beginning of the end came in 1959 when the Queen announced she would receive no more formal presentations. That same year the Governor-General declined to receive the rustling courtiers.

The following year the swank Artillery Ball in Toronto was discontinued and the lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan said he would follow the pattern set by the Queen.

Presentation of debutantes to the Lieutenant Governor of British Columbia at the United Services Institution Hall in Victoria, B.C., was also discontinued but was revived again the next year.

But it continued in Halifax and in St. John's, Nfld., where until Confederation in 1949 the debutantes had the bonus of a trip to London and their coming out at Buckingham Palace.

New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, although both staunchly loyal to old customs, haven't observed the debutante ritual for more than 45 years. What it boils down to is that the debutante ball just hasn't a purpose anymore. At one time it seemed necessary for a young woman, of a certain social level, to meet young men who were eligible suitors. The debutante ball provided this.

Now the normal young woman, regardless of her class in society, has met scores of eligible young men through several adolescent birthday parties, not to speak of school dances and "record hops."

There was no reaction whatever from prospective debutantes. Those who "came out" a year or two ago said they had little or no feeling for it. They did it because "my mother did it" and more because it supported the Children's Hospital Auxiliary.

Some of them weren't keen on it at all. They grumbled about wasting six Sunday afternoons going to dancing lessons so they could whirl properly around the great room in the traditional waltzes.

Orphanage Party

Tiny Hostess Charms Guests

There was one person at the tea at the B.C. Protestant Orphanage Thursday who just wasn't going to speak to reporters, no thank you.

She didn't tell us her name but she was pretty as a picture in her best pink dress, and she was helping to receive guests at the annual linen shower and donation tea.

"Say hello to the lady," she was asked, but we hadn't been properly introduced, so she wasn't going to speak to strangers. She wouldn't even say goodbye, either.

Never mind, she was an enchanting hostess anyway, as she helped Ladies Committee president, Mrs. N. Harwood and Matron, Mrs. A. M. Ludgate, welcome guests at the door.

A feature of the afternoon, during which over $400 was raised for the Orphanage, was a concert of songs performed by the children under the direction of Rev. C. A. Barner. Mrs. O. Wiseman, assistant matron, accompanied at the piano.

Cash donations were received by Mrs. S. J. D. Clark and Mrs. J. C. Scott, while Mrs. A. H. Adams was in charge of gifts of linen.

Mrs. E. Currey and Miss D. Hassall poured tea later in the afternoon for over 150 guests.

Mrs. P. W. Mackereth was tea convener, assisted by Mrs. W. R. Clarke, Mrs. F. Shandley, Mrs. W. E. Scythes, Mrs. J. W. King, Mrs. J. Bigmore, Mrs. C. J. McLeod, Mrs. G. Murdoch, Mrs. A. Wisniewski, Mrs. W. E. Weiss, Mrs. L. R. Hall, Mrs. J. MacLachlan and Mrs. W. Holder.

Bridge Games Making Money

CHEMAMUS, B.C. (CP) — April meeting of Arbutus Chapter IOOE was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Watts, with the regent, Mrs. Carl Mowat, presiding.

Mrs. William Latta, reported the winter bridge tournaments nearing completion, had netted $54.00 for the Chapter's scholarship fund. Afternoon or ladies' group winners were Mrs. F. R. Sadd, and Mrs. F. L. Watts, the winners of the mixed group play are Mr. and Mrs. Al. Sundquist, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bonde, who will play-off.

Mrs. Joseph Sandland read an interesting brochure on "Beginnings of British Columbia" outlining the early years of trading posts, first assemblies and ultimate union of Vancouver Island and the Mainland.

Mrs. F. R. Sadd will convene a special window display promoting Dominion Day celebrations in this centennial year. The hostess served refreshments following the meeting.

Two Shows Present Popular New Collages

By IANA D. D. UTHOFF

To many Victorians and others, the name of Charles Brookman may be familiar, but there will be some who remember a small exhibition of his work at The Point two or three years ago.

It was a modest little show, but it was a fore taste of the much more important one opened Tuesday evening at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, and which will be shown there for the next three weeks.

Brookman is an interpreter of visions, all relating to a personal experience. He might be called an expressionist in an abstract way, with some romanticism added.

He follows the current fashion of working in plaster, burlap and concrete, using color as subtly that it extends the mood of each composition. Masonite provides a durable foundation for the collages, or ordinary canvas may be built up with plaster.

One of my choices would be

Here on a Field of Blue for its somberly beautiful color, accented by one highly modelled area in plaster.

Coastal Impression is a quietly lyrical thing with its richly textured planes of color. One can sense the tidal ebb as it washes quietly over the pebbles. Boldly incised lines provide added power.

Pornographer Exchanges

Paris for London

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Imagine Frenchmen buying naughty books in Britain and sneaking them into Paris through the French customs.

Mrs. out, it could happen. For years it's been happening the other way around. Englishmen bought pornography books in Paris and slipped them past the British customs.

Many of those books were published by the Olympia Press, headed by Maurice Girodias, 47, who has been quoted as saying: "I am a pornographer. I accept the title with joy and pride."

Girodias, who published other books for their literary merit, has moved his base to London. He has made an arrangement with a British company, the New English Library, to print some of the books he used to publish in Paris as well as new ones that he says will be "completely clean."

Cash Claimed After Strike

DUBLIN (Reuters) — Bank customers have withdrawn an estimated £10,000,000 ($30,000,000) in cash in the face of a strike threatening banks throughout the Irish Republic. The strike by 3,000 junior officials demanding more pay has hit 900 branches of the 10 banks in the republic and banks in Northern Ireland.

Bridge Results

Winners of the Regular Weekly game of the All-Islanders Bridge Club were: North-south—J. Margaret Kirby and R. H. Reid; 2. Anne Dye and Tony Marsh; 3. Phil Hagel and Walter Allen; 4. Joan Brown and Keith Sagarin; East-west—J. Molly Collins and Dorothy McCannell; 2. Jack Gidde and E. Dye; 3. Birds Durn and Verna Acres; 4. Pat Bishop and Mike Campbell.

Garden Notes

Tall, Wide, Grand

By M. V. CHESNUT

In glancing over my notes on our third Colonist free seed offer for 1966, it seems to me I haven't explained very clearly just what it is about these seeds that make them superior to the ordinary kinds of Candytuft. In other words, what's so special about the Hyacinth-flowered kind?

The common Candytuft is a dwarf plant, growing 9 to 12 inches tall, with umbrella-shaped flower heads made up of many small florets, blooming in blends of pink, carmine, lilac, rose and white. The pastel colors are a little on the wishy-washy side, and while the plants serve a useful purpose for massing in small beds, the flowers are much too short-stemmed for cutting.

The Giant Hyacinth-flowered Candytuft is a much grander subject altogether. The plants grow 18 to 24 inches tall, branching near the base to push up anywhere from 4 to 6 spikes of bloom.

The individual florets are twice as large as the common kind, pure white in color, looking like an oversize white hyacinth, very showy in beds and a really outstanding cut flower, long-stemmed and long-lasting in water.

As you know, I was started on my search for these seeds by a letter from a lady who wanted me to recommend a really good white flower she could grow for the decoration of her church. When I first saw the Hyacinth-flowered Candytuft, I couldn't help remembering the wedding of Princess Grace of Monaco, for which the church was decorated with sprays of greenhouse-grown, out-of-season white lilacs. For my money, this Candytuft is a more attractive flower, with a waxy purity to the petals and with a radiance never seen in any lilac.

For a simple outdoor sowing, I think it is best to sow on a small special seed bed rather than in the beds where the plants are expected to bloom. Candytuft transplants without any special difficulty, and growing them in this way, the plants can be given closer attention than when the tiny seeds are spaced out widely in a big bed. The seed bed needn't be big—a patch no bigger than your kitchen table can raise all the seedlings you could possibly use.

Dig it over, then rake to break down the lumps. If your soil is heavy, a little peat moss dug in will improve its texture.

After raking, tread it over to make firm and level. As Candytuft is a lime-lover, it is a good idea to whiten the surface of the soil with hydrated lime at this stage, then rake in shallowly.

Sow your seeds thinly, spacing them about 1½ inches apart each way, and cover shallowly with sifted soil or with damp peat moss. A heavy, battering rain can wreak havoc among tiny seedlings of any kind, so it is a good idea to concentrate your seeds in a rather small space so the whole sown patch can be covered with an extemporized frame of some kind—perhaps just a shallow box with the bottom knocked out and a sheet of plastic substituted.

These seeds germinate readily and should come poking through in about a week. Grow them thriftily, starting the soil between the plantlets occasionally, and transplant to their flowering position around the end of the month, spacing them about a foot apart each way.

JACK SMITH Learns Body Awareness

Non-Verbal Walk Wonderful

I attended my first body awareness meeting at Big Sur, Calif., and came home a zealous convert to one of that cult's rituals—the nonverbal sensitivity walk.

Every man, woman and child should take one. The idea is to take a walk in nature under a vow of silence, freed of the web of words that imprisons us most of our waking moments.

First we lay on a grassy slope above the seashore, tuning up, one might say, for the walk.

"Feel the sun on your forehead," our body awareness teacher told us. "Now cover your eyes with your hands. Feel the pressure of your hands against your cheeks. Feel your cheeks against your hands. Now raise your hands. Feel the breeze on your eyes. Listen to the birds..."

Thus awakened, we set off through the woods on our walk. There were 30 of us. Nobody said a word. There was no pairing off; no clustering into groups. There were no conversations to glue people together.

Suddenly I felt quite unfettered. A brown-haired nymph in a purple leotard and black tights ran by me, leaping ecstatically. I didn't even have to say hello.

We passed a waterfall and some knelt to dip flushed faces in its bubbling pool. Nobody cried, "My turn!" or "Me next!" or "Is it cold, Mabel?"

A woman of mature years but childlike spirit approached me wordlessly and handed me a nosegay of orange and violet wildflowers. I didn't even say thanks, and she dashed away, graceful as an emu.

"First we lay on a grassy slope... tuning up, one might say, for the walk."

We descended old stone steps to the shore and explored the tidepools, our senses drinking in the sunlight, the icy touch of seaweeds, the piping and caw of seabirds, the smell of seaweed and salt air, the rush of surf among the dark rocks.

There was an exhilaration I had never felt before among groups of people. We had achieved some incredible harmony with nature, and with each other. One felt no hostility toward my other, no fear, no irritating interest.

It was much the way antelopes must feel about each other, I thought, as they graze over the veldt. There were no words to break the spell.

What a splendid idea, I drem; no thick-tongued polemics suddenly realized, for cocktail party! I may never take another sensitivity walk. It is hard on the shoes, for one thing, and there is always the danger of failing over something or into something.

But a nonverbal sensitivity cocktail party! What a blessing! I hope the girl in the purple leotard shows up.

to throw one as an experiment. Imagine. There will be no sinister traps on this side or that as one threads his way to the bar; no interminable tales about the lils, education and delinquencies of dreadful child; no thick-tongued polemics about Johnson and the war; no banal jokes; no witticisms lost forever in the megaton of shrill chatter.

There will be nothing to do but eat, drink and contemplate the human comedy in silence. I hope the girl in the purple leotard shows up.

Exit Sinatra-Style

NEW YORK (NANA)—When Frank Sinatra doesn't like someone he does something about it. A girl sitting at his table in the lounge of the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas was annoying to Frank. He finger-snapped two guards who made like genies and caused the girl to disappear—forcibly.

It's wonderful reading about the fondness enveloping Peyton Place co-stars Mia Farrow and Barbara Parkins. Privately, the girls are very unkind when discussing each other.

Natalie Wood winged in and out of Manhattan in a three-day search of department stores and eligible men. The stores did well by the pretty lady, but the bigtown's bachelor ranks remained undepleted. Time was when Natalie wouldn't give a second date to a guy who gave her a bad time, but Stuart Whitman surprised her by not taking her to the academy awards—she was so sure that he intended to escort her that she called him on the afternoon of the big show to find out what time he was picking her up—and Natalie is continuing to date him. She's a lonely lass, but determined to find Mr. Right before leaping into a second bout of matrimony. Her only husband was actor Robert Wagner, but there have been packs of pursuers.

Danny Thomas's TV outfit has a half-hour pilot in the works about a disc jockey and his young wife. It'll be called Good Morning World... MGM Records are pushing a new performer, David Soul, "the covered man," who wears a face-covering mask with only his eyes and mouth exposed. If he sings as weirdly as he looks, he'll probably be a big smash with the kids.

You can rent Rory Calhoun's immense six-bedroom Beverly Hills house for only $3,500 a month—furnished, of course... Ryan O'Neal and Big Valley star Lee Majors celebrated their birthdays together at filmland's famed Daisy Club, a private discotheque. The festivities ended with Ryan and Lee exchanging birthday cakes—by throwing them at each other.

Errol Flynn's eldest daughter, Dieder, 21, changed her mind about a showbiz career. Instead, Dieder plans to take the money she's getting from the late actor's estate and "open a bar, where my girl friend and I can have fun."

Comic Jackie Vernon is up for the lead role in the planned-for Broadway production of Fatty, based on the life of the late screen comic, Fatty Arbuckle. Vernon, told he was too heavy, has entered hospital to lose weight.

Benn Gazzara and Janice Rule, his lovely wife, dropped into Sybil Burton Christopher's "Arthur" to get a quick glimpse of the Manhattan action before Ben returns to Hollywood and his series, Run for Your Life. I asked him how he felt about the series. He said, "I love the loot. They aren't happy with me, because I sometimes walk when I can't get a script changed. Better that than writhing in agony, watching a film clip which proves I was right after it's too late to do anything about it."

Mickey Rooney is coming to TV in a new series produced by Blake Edwards, who parlayed Peter Gunn into a series of big-time movies. Blake returns to videoland with Mickey starring as Inspector O-Ho, an oriental cop.

Demand Trail Rights

Riders Gird for Fight

By A. H. MURPHY

District horsemen are declaring war on nature-lovers and conservationists who, they say, are riding roughshod over their rights.

Year by year, the riders claim, the areas in which they are allowed to exercise their mounts are being reduced in size. Year by year they shrink as naturalists, amateur and professional, believing that horses injure plant life, have more and more "no riding" signs posted.

And this is happening, say the equestrians, in spite of the fact that there are 2,000 riders in the Lower Island area and their numbers are rapidly growing from year to year.

GRANTED BY CITY

Gordon Maycock, who lives on the Trans-Canada Highway near Thetis Lake Park, says that the plant lovers are encroaching on territory which was granted to the riders by order of the city.

This was also brought out recently at a City Hall parks committee meeting by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, himself a horseman and an owner of land adjacent to the park. Upshot of the complaint and subsequent discussion was the decision to get the two factions together to work out some equitable division of territory.

"And you can bet we'll be there in force. It's time we declared war on these people," said Earl Pallister, proprietor of U Tree Farm Riding Stables on Millstream Road.

OWN DEMANDS

"So far the demands have all come from the so-called nature lovers. I think it's about time we horsemen began to make a few demands of our own," added the former president of the Vancouver Island Horsemen's Association.

The contention that horses break down plant life on the trails, as has been claimed several times by the sponsors of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary, was ridiculed by Mr. Pallister.

"You never see a horse coming away from a nature trail with a bouquet of wild-flowers—and that's more than you can say for some pedestrians," he added.

Victoria businessman C. C. Carpenter points out that it is not only in Thetis Park but all over the lower peninsula that trail riding areas are being constricted.

On the other hand, Mr. Carpenter said, an example of what could be done with forethought was Glendenning Road in Saanich. When this thoroughfare was hardtopped, the horsemen asked that a dirt trail be left at the side for riding. This was done and everything had worked out well.

Thumb, Clock Felt Jolt

A shot that was heard at least part way around the world succeeded in injuring a Canadian seaman's thumb Thursday when a clock fell from a fitting in HMCS 84, Croix off the coast of California.

The destroyer escort was being tested for her ability to withstand underwater explosions and her captain, Cmdr. J. S. Hertzberg reported no other damage.

The largest of the two blasts fired was the equivalent of a minor nuclear explosion. The battered ship will return to Esquimalt at 3 p.m. Monday.

Premier Meeting Financiers

Premier Bennett will fly to New York City this weekend for talks with American financial men.

He will be accompanied by Vancouver public relations man Don Elman, who formerly was Mr. Bennett's executive assistant.

It is understood the premier hopes to interest New York financiers in lending money toward B.C. Hydro's estimated $31,000,000 capital program planned for the 1966-67 fiscal year.

The premier is spending a long weekend at his cottage on Salt Spring Island preparing his case. He will leave for New York on Sunday.

Arson is suspected in fires which destroyed a barn and a garage in Saanich early Friday.

An inspector from the fire marshal's office in Vancouver began an investigation Friday. Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland said: "We don't think they started themselves."

A barn at Patricia Bay Highway and Royal Oak used for storing hay was completely destroyed. It will cost an estimated $4,000 to replace.

Two garages at 4151 Borden were almost destroyed by fire. About $750 damage was caused. Saanich has had three barn fires in a year and three shed or garage fires in two weeks.

Criticism Forgotten

Six Years of Marriage Mellows Royal Couple

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—When Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, go dancing, others on the ballroom floor are often heard to say: "How happy they look."

Friday, when they celebrated their sixth wedding anniversary attending a gala charity ball in the French Riviera town of Nice, the comment undoubtedly was made again, with special emphasis.

There seems no doubt that marriage to the onetime court photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones has matured and mellowed the Queen's gay younger sister, who is 35 and five months younger than her husband.

CALMNESS

Family life has brought calm and contentment to the girl who once made headlines, who suffered public heartbreak over her doomed romance with divorced Peter Townsend, and of whom the popular columnists repeatedly asked: "Will she ever marry?"

It has done the same for Snowdon, who in his bachelor days was noted for wild Chelsea parties and a wild assortment of friends. After an uneasy start, he now takes the round of formal function in a practiced stride.

His various advisory jobs in a field of design, including one with Lord Thompson's Sunday Times, give him more scope than any other member of the royal family for creative activity.

CRITICISED

But the married years have had a hefty share of rough weather. The couple have come under more criticism than any other figures in Britain's royal circle.

The glamorous Westminster Abbey wedding of May 8, 1960, caused perhaps the greatest outpouring of public rejoicing since the 1953 coronation. But the U.S. popular press commented the Queen looked "dour" during the service, speculating that she disapproved of the match—an observation widely heard among Britons who watched the ceremony, the first royal wedding to be televised.

But the British people were in high good humor at the love match. Outside the palace on the wedding evening, 100,000 Londoners sang For He's A Jolly Good Fellow, as Tony shyly smiled from the balcony in his first taste of public adulation.

It was not to last. Hardly was the West Indies honeymoon under way than questions were being asked in Parliament about the wedding bill—£25,000 ($75,000) compared with £6,000 for the nuptials of the then Princess Elizabeth in 1947.

CRITICS HARSH

The first year of the marriage was marred by a spate of harsh criticism that the Armstrong-Joneses did not seem to be earning the £15,000 British taxpayers were paying Margaret for public services.

It was freely speculated that the Queen was about to shift her sister into a backwater, handing over more royal duties to the popular Princess Alexandra of Kent.

In 1962, the newly ennobled Earl of Snowdon took a job with Canada's excellent press bureau, Lord Thomson, an artistic director of the Sunday Times. But still the critics were not satisfied. Now it was said that since Snowdon is making a salary, why not cut the royal allowance?

Four Detained After Blast Rips Factory

MONTREAL (CP)—Two of six men taken into custody Thursday after a bomb exploded in the H. B. La Grenade shoe factory, killing one person and injuring eight others, were released Friday.

The others—all striking employees of the firm—were detained for further questioning, a police spokesman said.

He added that officers are looking for a messenger boy who, witnesses say, entered the building two minutes before the explosion and left a package on the desk of a woman who was killed.

The body of Mrs. Therese Morin, 63, was found in the wreckage. She had been an employee of the company for 40 years.

Police said the bomb, which had the impact of more than four sticks of dynamite, was triggered by a small travelling clock attached to a 1½-volt battery. It was packed in a shoe box.

Severely injured were Henri

B. La Grenade, 51, vice-president of the company, Andre La Grenade, 57, a brother of Henri, and Therese Sirois, 23, an employee. Five others were treated in hospital for shock and minor injuries.

Some 120 employees have been on strike at the factory for more than a year, and there have been several incidents of violence between the strikers and non-union workers who have stayed on the job.

Canada's hush-hush police like to stay that way in quiet cold war with communist world's pros

OTTAWA — To most Canadians, the world of James Bond is a Never-Never land of international espionage, killings and above all willing women. It's as remote as Bangkok, as unreal as the land of Oz. At least it was unreal until the last two or three weeks with the disclosures of the Spencer and Munsinger inquiries.

Now we have George Victor Spencer, a poor man's James Bond, and Gerda Munsinger, the ministerial hussy.

And the RCMP has its S and I — the Canadian equivalent of the American FBI. The directorate of Security and Intelligence of the RCMP has figured prominently in both inquiries. Its chief, assistant commissioner William Henry Kelly, has suddenly been flushed into the open.

Mr. Kelly is 56 today. He's been a Mountie for 33 of those years. In contrast to Commissioner George McClellan, he is the exact opposite to the common stereotype of a policeman. He's red-faced, short and

Avert Strife

Ferry Study Slated

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The provincial government took steps Friday to ward off the threat of a possible strike this summer on the B.C. Ferries fleet.

A cabinet committee called for the appointment of a special management-labor committee to study the problem of summer shift schedules.

The decision was taken after a handful of cabinet ministers heard a brief submitted by Victoria lawyer Marney Stevenson, on behalf of some 350 deck and catering employees.

While Mrs. Stevenson's carefully-worded brief made no mention of the word "strike," it left no doubt there would be serious repercussions if no action were taken about the employees' complaints.

LOW MORALE

"The morale of the crews is so low," she warned, "that only a major change in the attitude of management toward these employees can prevent catastrophe during the coming months."

"The employees will not be able to stand up to 12 days of straight work with only three days in which to attempt to recover the energy to carry on for a further 12 days throughout a four-month period."

Mrs. Stevenson told the cabinet her brief is "a plea for the government to take steps to remedy the situation before it deteriorates any further."

MANAGEMENT

"The impression I have gained over the past four months of conferring with these crews is that 1967 will be too late," she said.

The cabinet committee was also told it is the prerogative of management, not of the employees, to work out schedules which meet the demands of the public and give acceptable working conditions to the crews.

The lawyer said she was informed that a committee should be set up to prepare some recommendations.

FIX DATE

This special committee, to consist of two members from management and two from the ferry employees, is to advise the cabinet committee by May as to when a report of its recommendations can be expected.

Attorney-General Bonner, who presided over the meeting, said: "The problem when two parties have taken a fixed position is to get them to move. The best way to achieve this is to get them working together."

Moors Murderers Jeered to Prison

CHESTER, England (Reuters) A young sales clerk and his blonde mistress were sentenced Friday to life imprisonment on conviction in the grisly sex killings known as "the moors murders."

An all-male jury found Ian Brady, 28, guilty of murdering Edward Evans, 17, and two schoolchildren: John Kilbride, 12, and Lesley Ann Downey, 10. Brady's mistress, 23-year-old Myra Hindley, was convicted jointly of murdering Evans and Lesley Ann.

'COLD-BLOODED'

Red-robed Judge Fenton Atkinson declared: "These were three calculated, cruel, cold-blooded murders."

He told Brady: "In your case I pass the only sentence which the law now allows, which is three concurrent sentences of life imprisonment."

COURTYARD

A crowd of about 250 gathered in the castle courtyard to see the two driven away to prison. They surged forward against police lines booing and jeering as Brady was brought out, handcuffed to a policeman. Miss Hindley followed, her arm firmly gripped by a woman prison officer.

The death penalty for murder was abolished in Britain last year for a five-year trial period. Under the new legal rules, Brady and Miss Hindley could spend the rest of their natural lives in jail, or could be released conditionally at any time after a review of their sentences.

ALL NORTH ISLAND 'GREEN' RESERVE

BY JOY HUNTLEY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said northern Vancouver Island will be a forestry recreation reserve for all time.

Soviets Denied Entry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two Soviet ships—elements of the fishing fleet that has been operating off the Pacific Coast—have been denied permission to enter U.S. territorial waters, the U.S. Coast Guard said Friday.

The two vessels, the Skryplev and the Chernakhovsk, had requested permission to enter Drake's Bay, north of San Francisco, to transfer supplies in protected waters.

Rear Adm. C. C. Knapp, commander of the 12th Coast Guard District with headquarters in San Francisco, said that entry of these ships would be inimical to the best interests of the United States.

He said only six communities will be allowed to develop: Campbell River, Gold River, Woss Lake, Port McNell, Port Hardy, and Port Alice.

Speaking to a public meeting here, he said "there will be no scattered ribbon development, and no junk and car bodies left along the highways."

He said "it is all well-planned, and it will not be destroyed."

MAJOR HUB

Mr. Campbell said Campbell River fits into this picture as a major hub, like Prince George.

He said he is not in favor of a multi-purpose town in Strathcona Park. He promised even if a townsite is located in the park, it will not develop commercially.

He said "there will be very little commerce in that park. Shopping will be done at Campbell River."

Referring to fears of Battle Lake pollution, he said "there will be 100 per cent no pollution—period."

Mr. Campbell said B.C. is ahead of the rest of Canada in combating pollution.

INSIST ON SEWERING

He said the government will insist that all municipalities be seweried if possible.

"Nanaimo owns itself the hub of the island, but that in itself is not what we are going to do next month or next year, but what must we do tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock?"

The minister said there are 7,500 in the municipality now, and by 1970 there will be at least 10,000.

"If some of the communities to the north grow faster than predicted, then these figures are all wrong," he said.

He said the municipality has a future second to none. "The tough problem here right now is not what we are going to do next month or next year, but what must we do tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock?"

'We Will Fight Red or Neutral Regime'

Ky Says Viet Military Will Hold Reins for Year

CAN THO, Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said today his military regime intends to stay in power "at least for another year."

Ky also said if the civilian government that will eventually emerge from general elections is neutralist or Communist "I and my friends will fight it."

Ky spoke to reporters at the nearby Binh Tuy Air Base which was turned over to the Vietnamese authorities today by the United States.

It was the first time since the recent political turmoil began to rock Viet Nam that the head of the 10-man military directorate clearly spelled out his plans.

Ky said the elections, expected to be held some time between Sept. 15 and Oct. 1, will elect only an assembly charged with drafting the country's constitution.

Once the constitution has been drafted, Ky said, another vote will be held to elect a legislative assembly which, in turn, will appoint a civilian government.

BITTER BATTLE

Meanwhile, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have killed 362 Communist troops in a bitter battle still raging in central Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

He said they also had captured 40 enemy troops and rounded up 433 suspects.

The battle, the first major ground action in more than three weeks, erupted over the flatlands north of Bong Son, 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

CLOSED TRAP

It began Thursday when elements of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division closed a trap on a Viet Cong battalion. The Communists chose to make a stand of it.

The high toll of enemy dead indicated the Viet Cong Battalion had been reinforced. Both North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were reported involved.

Dispatches from the field described U.S. and South Vietnamese casualties as light to moderate.

Forest Firms 'Too Poor' To Exhibit

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's No. 1 industry, lumber, cannot afford to buy space in next year's B.C. Trade Fair which is attracting exhibitors from around the world.

B. M. Hoffmeister said this is commenting on disappointment expressed Thursday by officials of the fair.

Mr. Hoffmeister, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., said: "We are in a period of tight profit squeeze and our promotional expenses must be watched very closely."

Spencer's Ex-Wife Recalls

He Was Popular But Leaned Left

COURTENAY — "He was popular when I married him but he had Communist leanings," said a well-known Courtenay resident and former businesswoman.

Kathleen Stephens, 933 Fitzgerald, was describing her nine-year marriage to spy suspect George Victor Spencer.

BREAK-UP

Miss Stephens was married to the late Mr. Spencer in 1933 and they were divorced in 1942.

His leftist beliefs "had nothing to do with the break-up of the marriage," she said.

Miss Stephens said the only change the Spencer case has brought to her life is the "constant ringing of the telephone."

OWNED STORE

Miss Stephens emphatically denied a statement attributed to her by a Vancouver newspaper, that Spencer "came from a good family, and I can't understand why he did it." Miss Stephens said she never said any such thing.

For years she owned a children's-wear store on Fifth Avenue.

Big Cal 'Haven for Reds, Deviates'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A state Senate committee charged Friday that under President Clark Kerr the giant University of California Berkeley campus has turned into a Communist haven and a centre for sexual deviation.

The Senate fact-finding committee on un-American activities said Kerr was instrumental in rehiring a teacher who, the committee said, lied about former Communist connections off-campus political causes.

When he took the state's loyalty oath, the committee charged, Kerr called the Berkeley campus the "pivotal base" for the anti-Viet Nam war movement in the United States, the committee said. Communists or Communist sympathizers first gained power in the "free speech" uprisings of 1964.

The report also criticized Kerr for allowing students and non-students to make use of university facilities to support off-campus political causes.

A spokesman for Kerr's office on the Berkeley campus said the San Francisco mime troupe, Kerr and Chancellor Roger Heyns were expected to make comments on the report later.

The committee cited reports of widespread student homosexuality, dances with lewd themes and the presentation of "disgusting debased spectacles" on campus.

In concluding that under Kerr, the campus "sank to a new low," specifically mentioned were the appearance on campus of and "sexual misconduct was blatant."

Turning to homosexuality, the committee cited a story in the student newspaper, The Daily Californian, said the information was published in one part of a five-part series of homosexuality and was obtained from Harold Call, president of the Mattachine Society of San Francisco, a group organized to protect the rights of homosexuals.

At the dance, the committee said, the smell of marijuana "pervaded the area," many of the dancers were intoxicated

Spencer Hearings Wound Up

By H. L. JONES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Royal commission hearings into the Spencer affair ended Friday, leaving on the public record allegations of Russian spy activities in Canada revealed only by those revealed by Soviet cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko in the 1940s.

All that remains is for Mr. Justice Duffin Wells to weigh the evidence and make his report. He said Friday as two days of hearings ended here, he expects to have his report in the government's hands within a month.

The commission also sat three days in Ottawa in April. The Ontario Supreme Court Justice was appointed by Prime Minister Pearson following a furor in Parliament over the case of the late George Victor Spencer. He is to determine whether the 62-year-old English-born Spencer, linked in an RCMP-painted picture of Russian spy intrigue, was fairly treated in being summarily dismissed without pension from his Vancouver postal clerk's job.

Highlight

A highlight of the case was the release here of a 99-page, partly-censored document containing evidence by Assistant Commissioner W. H. Kelly, the force's director of security and intelligence.

Mr. Kelly's report told of:

- clandestine meetings between Spencer and Russian agents;
- information passed to the Russians on farms for sale near the U.S. border;
- information about U.S. troops stationed in Canada;
- photos and data on the Trans Mountain pipeline which feeds oil to the B.C. lower mainland and Washington state;
- And even of the gravesite names of persons long dead and information on business and schools now defunct.

Cover Names

The gravestone names and information on defunct schools and businesses, it was suggested, was to provide legitimate cover names and background for Russian agents which could not be readily checked.

The document also contained a lengthy statement taken by the RCMP from Spencer, in which the dismissed postal clerk admitted repeated contact with Russian agents, trips to Ottawa under assumed names and use of code messages to set up meetings.

'Distortion'

Forest Industry Rapped by IWA

Ray Drew has accused forest industry employers' representatives of distorting the story coming from their talks on a new contract.

Coast wood products companies refused to make a wage offer to their 26,000 employees, said Mr. Drew, who was a member of the IWA negotiating committee.

Mr. Drew said union negotiators asked Forest Industrial

Smuggling Charge Acquitted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 39-year-old Chinese-Canadian was acquitted here Friday on a charge of smuggling close to $15,000 worth of Chinese art objects into Canada.

Chung Li (Tony) Yen and businessman Yee Man Yan were arrested last December when police raided a downtown apartment and seized goods including figurines, ivory, rare jade, jewelry, gold and rare snuff bottles.

Yan was found guilty on a smuggling charge in February and was fined $500. But Magistrate A. M. Grimmett said Friday he was satisfied Yen did not have possession of the goods at the time of his arrest.

In his statement given the RCMP last May, Spencer said at first he could not see "anything that I had done was of a subversive character" but after the third of seven trips to Ottawa to deliver information to the Russians, he began to suspect "there was something wrong and I was maybe being used as an agent."

Wanted Trip

Spencer also admitted being a member of the Communist party, from which he was expelled in an argument over policy but which he later tried unsuccessfully to rejoin. His relations with the Russians, he said, were carried out mainly in the hope of getting a trip to Russia.

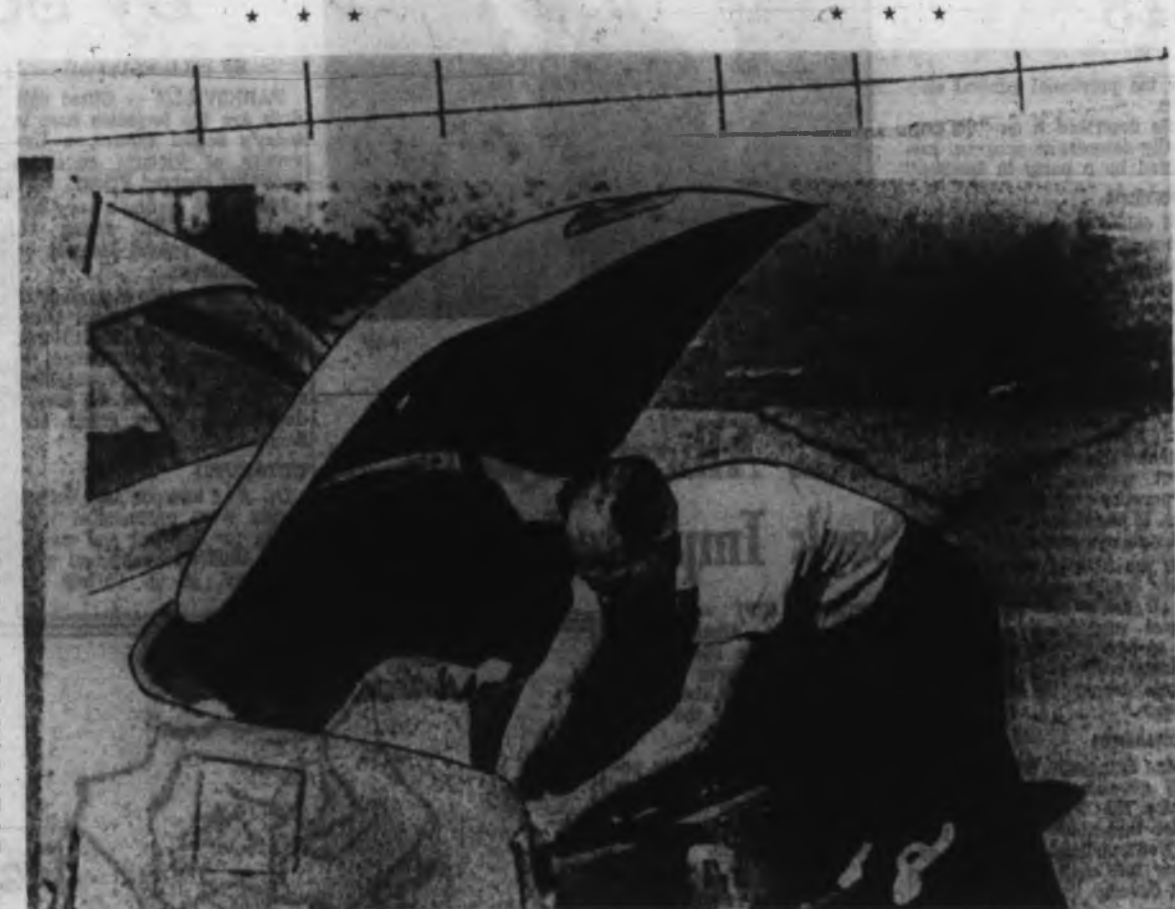

Spencer was found dead in his Vancouver home April 9. A coroner's jury decided his death was natural, caused by thrombosis possibly brought on by the aftermath of surgery the previous year for removal of a cancerous left lung.

The Vancouver hearings saw a clash between Commissioner Wells and lawyer Harry Rankin, representing the Spencer estate. Mr. Rankin repeatedly attacked the evidence given in the statement by Assistant Commissioner Kelly and said he had made Spencer's activities appear sinister when in fact they were not.

Easy to Get

Much of the information he had been asked to give or had given the Russians could have easily been obtained through ordinary public channels. In some cases he had told the Russians this.

He demanded that persons who had given information on which Mr. Kelly's report was based be subpoenaed before the commission. But Mr. Justice Wells refused. He said this would involve the security of Canada and "the security of this country is of more importance than the publicity of this hearing."

RCMP picture of Victor Spencer while he was under surveillance

Mr. Rankin then said he would sit in only as an observer. He declined an opportunity to cross-examine RCMP Sgt. M. G. Low, one of the officers who took the Spencer statement. Mr. Justice Wells remarked that because of this refusal, he could only assume Mr. Rankin accepted the statement of his dead client about espionage activity.

Mr. Rankin, in the closing hours of the hearing, made a summation, saying Mr. Kelly had made Spencer appear as a sinister figure, particularly with respect to availability of farms in the Sumas area along the U.S. border.

The fact was—and Spencer had told the Russians this according to Sgt. Low—that such information was readily available from real estate firms and through newspaper for sale ads.

Not Justified

He said Spencer's role did not justify the government's use of section 50 of the Civil Service Act by which an employee can be fired without a hearing and loss of pension rights.

Dairy Policy Under Fire

Hundreds of Creameries Threatened

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of creameries could be forced out of business by the new federal dairy policy, Harold Danforth (PC-Kent) told the Commons agriculture committee Friday.

The Ontario MP said the dairy policy "in the main is doing a tremendous amount of good." But, if it is continued in its present form, "hundreds of creameries will be forced out of business."

Creameries, he said, are an important segment of the dairy industry. He termed the policy one instance where the conception was sound, but the result had a "hole" in it.

Agriculture department officials had told an earlier meeting of the committee the new dairy policy encourages farmers to ship milk to processing plants, not separated cream to creameries. The policy, in effect since April 1, guarantees farmers $4 a hundredweight for their manufacturing milk.

Mr. Danforth's creamery complaint was part of a lengthy claim that Agriculture Minister Green had failed to touch on the "sensitive patterns" of agriculture and other important matters in his earlier policy statement to the committee.

Needed, Mr. Danforth said, was the government view on production goals, the shift of labor from farm to factory, on how to keep young agronomists in agriculture and so on. Major principles should be dealt with by the committee.

Agriculture, he said, "can no longer stagger along with the government making patchwork."

attempts to keep the industry together.

Mr. Jorgensen, a Manitoba farmer, told Mr. Green, an Eastern lawyer, that raising prices for farm products is no use if suppliers of goods to farmers are allowed to raise prices as they see fit.

Suppliers, he said, have a philosophy: "Take all the market will bear."

He said the high cost of land and farm machinery makes it "virtually impossible" for a young man to establish himself in farming. Mr. Jorgensen added he had no answer to the problem.

E. W. Herdridge (NDP-Kootenay West) said the dairy policy has received the general approval of milk producers.

A British Columbia tree-farmer, Mr. Herdridge thought it was time for the federal government to attempt to develop a single formula acceptable to the provinces to govern trespassers on farm lands.

Refund Policy On Pensions 'Morally Wrong'

OTTAWA (CP)—Still smarting from the income tax bite themselves, MPs got in their kicks at Revenue Minister Benson Friday as the departmental spending estimates of the government's tax collector came up for debate in the Commons.

Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton), former immigration minister, said it is "morally wrong" for the revenue department not to refund overpayments by employers under the Canada Pension Plan.

Many employees, particularly in construction trades, held several jobs during a year. Each employer had to pay his full share towards the pension plan—provided more than the $60 minimum earnings were paid out.

Although the employee received a tax rebate for his overpayments, the employer did not. "The minister has taken a very casual approach to this problem,"

Replying before the House approved his department's 1966-67 estimates of $94,585,800, Mr. Benson said no simple way has been found to calculate these refunds correctly.

The overpayments represent about $5,000,000 in a total of about $500,000,000 channelled into the pension fund.

Mr. Benson praised revenue employees and noted the soaring increase in the volume of tax returns—6,700,000 for the 1965 tax year.

Conversion to computers and data-processing equipment had reduced the cost of handling $100 to 86 cents from $2.15 a half-dozen years ago.

The tax debate followed Commons approval of the automotive trade agreement between Canada and the United States.

J. A. Monaghan (Ind—Trois-Rivieres) and Real Caouette, Creditiste leader, criticized the department's insistence on complete receipts for all donations to charitable and religious organizations.

It is unreasonable, said Mr. Monaghan, "to oblige the clergy to supply receipts to everyone who makes a gift." The basic $100 deduction could be increased to include such donations without receipts.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) said a man who must hire help while his wife is in hospital should be allowed a deduction for expenses.

Business Lost In Mill Blaze

LAKE COWICHAN — The enterprise of two brothers and a partner was ruined when the Van Isle shake and shingle mill burned to the ground late Thursday night. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

A spark blown up by a sudden strong wind was thought to be the cause. There was nobody at the mill at the time.

Lake Cowichan volunteer fire brigade attended but was unable to save the burning buildings.

Norman Rook, Bert Rosenbush and his brother Donald and a crew of 11 men had built a small abandoned mill on the lake shore into a thriving business, exporting shakes mostly to the United States.

All the cedar came from the Nitinat region and only last fall the company started getting their own logs out.

"We hope to be back in operation again in a small way, within two weeks. The mill was insured, but no one can afford to insure buildings for what they cost to replace these days," said Donald Rosenbush.

'Liquor Led To Death'

NANAIMO — A lethal combination of liquor and driver negligence caused the death of a Ladysmith boy on April 16, a jury ruled Thursday night.

Richard David Gilson, 18, died from severe head injuries when a car in which he was a passenger failed to negotiate a curve and rolled over into a ditch.

MUCH DRINKING

The accident occurred on Takla Road, three miles north of Ladysmith.

The driver of the car, Harry Phillips, 18, Robert Irwin, 21, and Richard Smillie, 17, all of Ladysmith, admitted at the inquest they had spent the ten hours prior to the accident drinking at a gravel pit at Cossidy, between Nanaimo and Ladysmith.

They estimated 60 bottles of beer had been consumed by the group.

SIGNS NEEDED

A pathologist's report showed Gilson had a blood alcohol reading of 0.13 per cent.

The jury first returned with a verdict which Coroner Russ Inkster ruled did not take into account all the evidence presented.

Ambitious Project Discussed

DUNCAN — An ambitious park plan was explained by Vancouver garden architect Clive Justice to city council Thursday night.

Council at its special meeting was joined by members of the city's advisory planning commission and the recreation commission.

Involved in the park plan are about 25 acres of land between Wharmcliffe Road, the Cowichan River and McKinstry Street.

Mayor Jack Dobson said "It always has been the city's policy to get experts in the respective fields to get jobs done properly."

Mr. Justice suggested to council the acquisition of a piece of land which would not only provide an attractive access to the park complex from the Trans-Canada Highway but would also beautify the southern approach to the city.

The garden architect stressed "It is part of our philosophy to keep trees and in the proposed park area there are a number of large trees."

He said 60-year-old trees cannot be replaced during a lifetime.

He underlined his comment with the suggestion of moving trees into the park area from elsewhere where they would be destroyed at building sites.

FIELD HOUSE

The park complex would be developed in steps during the next few years if council gives its approval.

Provided in the complex would be a field house, playing fields, a decorative lake for drainage purposes, parking facilities and walking paths.

GOOD FIT

Referring to the field house which has been designed by a Victoria architect Mr. Justice said "we feel it would fit into the park beautifully."

Mayor Dobson said "I would like to see something for all age groups incorporated in this plan."

Company Says Fire Controlled

GOLD RIVER — Takla Company announced Friday a fire which was burning near a roadway in this area, was a controlled slash fire.

The fire caused some concern to residents unfamiliar with slash-burning procedures.

However the company said the fire was controlled at all times and from a logging point of view was a success.

It was pointed out if the area had not been subject to a controlled fire now, a worse blaze might have occurred by accident in the summer.

Bicycle Hits Car Boy in Hospital

COURTENAY — An accident the rear end of a car driven by Thursday sent Donald Miller, Courtenay, to hospital.

The boy, about 8 years of age, was riding his bike on Fifth Street when he collided with not serious.

Old Master Painter Smiles When Asked What He Means

Several guesses as to its meaning, the opposition leader discarded with the comment: "I just came here to paint, you figure out its meaning."

Some said the abstract looked like a dove thumb behind jail bars, others claimed it depicts a lunatic asylum.

Finally Mr. Strachan broke down and announced the title: The Government's Philosophy Is Hard to Understand.

Mr. Strachan's second painting<sup>2</sup> is far simpler to interpret.

It shows wooded mountains rolling into a sunset.

When he departed from the scene Friday the rain still drizzled on the fence and on the unfinished provincial courthouse behind it.

Public Holiday Road Claimed by Indians

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Who owns the busy scenic road that leads from the Somass River to the McCoy Lake area?

"If the piece of road between River Bend Bridge and McCoy Lake belongs to the public works or Department of Highways, we want to see the paper," said Jim Gallic, member of the Sechart Band Council.

INDIAN TRAIL

"The road belongs to the Indians. It was an Indian trail from time immemorial" agreed Alec Thomas, born in the Alberni Valley more than 70 years ago, and whose ancestors lived here for generations before him.

Alec Thomas is an hereditary chief, whose son Robert Thomas is chief councillor for the Sechart Band.

POLES DISPUTED

With councillor Tommy Watt Jr., they explained their grievance against the B.C. Telephone Company, B.C. Hydro and the Department of Highways.

"In the beginning, when the company wanted to put power poles across our reserve land, our idea was not to charge them for right of way for the poles, and have free lighting on the reserve instead," Mr. Gallic explained.

"Then there was a change of council. Next thing we knew, the poles went up and the band has to pay for lighting."

HYDRO CLAIM

The cost is said to be in the neighborhood of $900 a year, for the half-dozen lights that make up the "street lighting" in the area.

"B.C. Hydro now says it can put up the poles without paying because they are on the government road allowance."

CONSENT NEEDED

"What we want to know is, when did the provincial government pay for the road allowance? The Indian Affairs Department cannot give away our land without the consent of the band. If the Indian Affairs made this agreement, where is the paper?" Mr. Gallic asked.

Telephone poles on the road allowance under question are also the subject of frequent discussion.

TREES CLEARED

"On one hand, some people building on the reserve are having trouble getting their power and phone poles up, because the companies demand all trees must be cleared out of the way by the builders."

"Since we never handed over any land for a road, how come they can put up the poles where they want them, and can't put them up where we want them?"

POST MOVED

According to Mr. Thomas, he and other interested band members looked into the matter in Victoria some years ago, and were told the Indian reserve in question extended to the corner of the MacMillan and Bloedel plywood plant.

"It was marked IR for Indian Reserve on a post in the creek," he recalled. Later, the Indians claim, the post was moved two chains to the south by some unnamed person or authority.

Mr. Thomas is convinced no one can take over or give away any Indian lands without the consent of the band. And he once got $5,000 for his band to prove it.

"First money for our band funds was early in the First World War, when we sold a piece of reserve land for railway right of way for $5,000," he recounted.

"It came to $19.55 for each band member. But we never got it, and finally we asked Mr.

Fraser, the Indian agent, where it was. He told us the government took it away as a war measure. We knew they shouldn't do that, but apparently it was gone."

COMPOUND INTEREST

Some 20 years later, in 1934, Mr. Thomas went to the Eastern United States on business. It was suggested he should stop in Ottawa on the way back, and ask about the bands $5,000.

"I reminded them that under the Indian Act, they must have the consent of the band to give away or take away anything. I was there 7 days, and we got the $5,000. Of course we lost the live per cent compound interest that over 20 years would have doubled our money."

"So that's how I know the road from River Bend Bridge to McCoy Lake is still ours. They have to have band consent," the patriarch concluded.

The road the Indians claim is really reserve property, is the sole approach to popular Sprout Lake as well as the only public access to the Tofino-Uclulet Road, Great Central Lake and the McCoy Lake area.

Commented one observer, "what a place for a toll gate!"

Low Bids Big Jobs

NANAIMO — Local contractors have been bidding successfully on work outside Nanaimo during the season on April 30, 1966, and some 40 to 50 men were laid off.

Several projects, particularly sewer construction, will continue for a further month.

Logging operations, maintained production at high levels with little turnover of staff.

Most orders received were for skilled men for out-of-area camps, one pole manufacturing operation with 16 employees was closed for a three-week period as a result of a dispute over working conditions. A settlement was reached and work resumed on May 2.

There was a shuffle of building construction workers at mid-month when the winter housing incentive program came to an end. Most workers affected were employed on other jobs within a few days, and Municipal Improvements and Local men, mainly key workers, are being employed at most points on the Island and at little value to local employers.

There has been a steady flow of workers from the B.C. lower mainland and from the prairie provinces. Those with special skills and desirable personal qualities find little difficulty obtaining work.

Many of the individuals, however, are in the unskilled category with limited education and are employed at most or special training and are of little value to local employers.

At the end of April, 450 men and 253 women were registered as seeking work compared with 515 men and 215 women at the start of the month.

At the same time last year, registrations from 374 men and 198 women were on file.

'Turn In Bad Drivers'

Motorists: Blow Whistle

NANAIMO — Motorists have a moral obligation to report traffic offenders to the police, the Rev. Eugene Harder told Rotarians Friday.

He said this is not a police state tactic but "these people jeopardise the lives of people who have a right on the highway."

"The safety of a person's life is our business, we are our brother's keeper," he said.

Mr. Harder is pastor of Departure Bay Baptist Church, and a member of the Nanaimo Citizens Highway safety committee.

He called for legislation to halt the slaughter on the highway in which 10 children already have died this year in accidents on the Island.

TWO KINDS "It's not something to give over to old ladies to do something about," he said.

Mr. Harder divided accidents into two categories, those caused by mechanical error and those by human error.

PENALTIES He admitted some mechanical errors are unavoidable, but he suggested there should be penalties for people who are negligent with the mechanical safety of their cars.

The minister dealt at length with impaired drivers.

Lawmakers are bogged down on how much a person can drink before his capabilities are impaired.

He said he found it hard to believe in an age where the slightest chemical change in astronauts can be determined, that it can't be determined how much a driver can safely consume.

Alberni Workshop Prepares for Convention

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Kits for working with the retarded, are being made up by the retarded themselves.

The information kits will be handed out to delegates attending the B.C. Association for Retarded Children annual conference at Nanaimo, May 19 to 22.

The kits are being assembled by boys at Arrowsmith Services, the Alberni's sheltered workshop.

The workshop is run by the Alberni Valley Association for the retarded.

Delegates attending the sessions will be in Nanaimo for four days, discussing such topics as home care and guardianship.

The boys at Arrowsmith Services are not strangers to community volunteer work.

They have helped a number of service clubs mail information for charity drives.

Last week they completed kits for volunteers who will canvass Monday for the retarded children.

Judges Honor Babies

LAKE COWICHAN — Tiny babies sleeping peacefully, toted in old-time dresses, and little girls and boys all on their best behavior made up the 56 entries in the Kinettes centennial baby show on Friday.

Lady of the Lake Suzanne Castley was present and guest of honor was the first baby born at Lake Cowichan, Mrs. Gladys Howe.

Mrs. Carol Giles, Kinettes convenor, and her committee had the program in three age groups, with golden trophies and little crowns for the winners.

LAKE COWICHAN — Queen by inheritance, Suzanne Castley reigns as Lady of the Lake over Centennial Celebrations this weekend.

Susan Hildebrandt was chosen Lady of the Lake last July, but on her marriage last month Princess Suzanne became first lady.

Born at Lake Cowichan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steadman Castley, this charming fair-haired young lady comes of real Cowichan pioneer stock.

Her great grandfather came from the Lake District of England and homesteaded at Somenos.

Her grandfather, Jack Castley, was best known for his work in charge of the dominion government fish hatchery at the Lake, which he looked after until he retired in 1935.

Steadman Castley was also born in Cowichan and it was while serving overseas in the Canadian Army he met his English wife. He now works at Youbou.

Suzanne hopes to graduate from Grade 13 at Lake Cowichan high school next month.

She is not sure about a career, perhaps an airline stewardess. But first she wants to travel and especially visit her relations in England.

Now her immediate duties are presiding over the centennial festivities as Lady of the Lake.

Judge Forbids Pickets On Thetis

VICTORIA — Picketing oyster workers were forced back into their shells Thursday when Mr. Justice Thomas Matskiw, brown-eyed baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Matskiw, North Shore Road.

During the Supreme Court hearing Wednesday and Thursday at Victoria, Harold Dean, appearing for the union, maintained there was a lawful strike at the plant and that workers had been illegally locked out by the employers.

NO SUPPORT

The judge refused to support either contention.

The judge found specific breaches of the injunction by servants of the union.

B. R. Smith appeared for the Thetis Oyster Co. in the action. Two other oyster companies, Timothy and Marios-Falcos, are also closed down.

Canada's hush-hush police like to stay that way

OTTAWA — To most Canadians, the world of James Bond is a Never-Never land of international espionage, killings and above all willing women. It's as remote as Bangkok, as unreal as the land of Oz. At least it was until the last two or three weeks with the disclosures of the Spencer and Munsinger inquiries. Now we have George Victor Spencer, a poor man's James Bond, and Gerda Munsinger, the ministerial bussy. And the RCMP has its S and I — the Canadian equivalent of the American FBI. The directorate of Security and Intelligence of the RCMP has figured prominently in both inquiries. Its chief, assistant commissioner William Henry Kelly, has suddenly been flushed into the open. Mr. Kelly is 56 today. He's been a Mountie for 33 of those

Avert Strife

Ferry Study Slated

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

The provincial government took steps Friday to ward off the threat of a possible strike this summer on the B.C. Ferries fleet.

A cabinet committee called for the appointment of a special management-labor committee to study the problem of summer shift schedules.

The decision was taken after a handful of cabinet ministers heard a brief submitted by Victoria lawyer Marney Stevenson, on behalf of some 350 dock and catering employees.

While Mrs. Stevenson's carefully-worded brief made no mention of the word "strike," it left no doubt there would be serious repercussions if no action were taken about the employees' complaints.

LOW MORALE

"The morale of the crews is so low," she warned, "that only a major change in the attitude of management toward these employees can prevent catas-trophes during the coming months."

"The employees will not be able to stand up to 12 days of straight work with only three days in which to attempt to recover the energy to carry on for a further 12 days throughout a four-month period."

Mrs. Stevenson told the cabinet her brief is "a plea for the government to take steps to remedy the situation before it deteriorates any further."

MANAGEMENT

"The impression I have gained over the past four months of conferring with these crews is that 1967 will be too late," she said.

The cabinet committee was also told it is the prerogative of management, not of the employees, to work out schedules which meet the demands of the public and give acceptable working conditions to the crews.

The lawyer said she was informed that the committee should be set up to prepare some recommendations.

FIX DATE

This special committee, to consist of two members from management and two from the ferry employees, is to advise the cabinet committee by May as to when a report of its recommendations can be expected.

Attorney-General Bonner, who presided over the meeting, said: "The problem when two parties have taken a fixed position is to get them to move. The best way to achieve this is to get them working together."

Moors Murderers Jeered to Prison

CHESTER, England (Reuters) — A young sales clerk and his blonde mistress were sentenced Friday to life imprisonment on conviction in the grisly sex killings known as "the moors murders."

An all-male jury found Ian Brady, 28, guilty of murdering Edward Evans, 17, and two schoolchildren: John Kilbride, 12, and Lesley Ann Downey, 10. Brady's mistress, 23-year-old Myra Hindley, was convicted jointly of murdering Evans and Lesley Ann.

'COLD-BLOODED'

Red-robed Judge Fenton Atkinson declared: "These were three calculated, cruel, cold-blooded murders."

He told Brady: "In your case I pass the only sentence which the law now allows, which is three concurrent sentences of life imprisonment."

COURTYARD

A crowd of about 250 gathered in the castle courtyard to see the two driven away to prison. They surged forward against police lines booing and jeering as Brady was brought out, handcuffed to a policeman. Miss Hindley followed, her arm firmly gripped by a woman prison officer.

The death penalty for murder was abolished in Britain last year for a five-year trial period. Under the new legal rules, Brady and Miss Hindley could spend the rest of their natural lives in jail, or could be released conditionally at any time after a review of their sentences.

Soviets Denied Entry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two Soviet ships—elements of the fishing fleet that has been operating off the Pacific Coast—have been denied permission to enter U.S. territorial waters, the U.S. Coast Guard said Friday.

The two vessels, the Skryplev and the Chernyakhovsk, had requested permission to enter Drake's Bay, north of San Francisco, to transfer supplies in protected waters.

Rear Adm. C. C. Knapp, commander of the 12th Coast Guard District with headquarters in San Francisco, said that entry of these ships would be inimical to the best interests of the United States.

CAN THO, Viet Nam (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said today his military regime intends to stay in power "at least for another year."

Ky also said if the civilian government that will eventually emerge from general elections is neutralist or Communist "I and my friends will fight it."

Ky spoke to reporters at the nearby Binh Tuy Air Base which was turned over to the Vietnamese authorities today by the United States.

It was the first time since the recent political turmoil began to rock Viet Nam that the head of the 10-man military directorate clearly spelled out his plans.

Ky said the elections, expected to be held some time between Sept. 15 and Oct. 1, will elect only an assembly charged with drafting the country's constitution.

Once the constitution has been drafted, Ky said, another vote will be held to elect a legislative assembly which, in turn, will appoint a civilian government.

Meanwhile, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have killed 382 Communist troops in a bitter battle still raging in central Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

He said they also had captured 40 enemy troops and rounded up 433 suspects. The battle, the first major ground action in more than three weeks, swirled over the flatlands north of Bong Son, 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

It began Thursday when elements of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division closed a trap on a Viet Cong battalion. The Communists chose to make a stand of it.

The high toll of enemy dead indicated the Viet Cong battalion had been reinforced. Both North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were reported involved.

Dispatches from the field described U.S. and South Vietnamese casualties as light to moderate.

Strict Planning Pledged

Whole of North Island Tagged 'Green Reserve'

By JOY HUNTLEY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said northern Vancouver Island will be a forestry recreation reserve for all time.

He said only six communities will be allowed to develop: Campbell River, Gold River, Woss Lake, Port McNeill, Port Hardy, and Port Alice.

Speaking to a public meeting here, he said "there will be no scattered gibbon development, and no junk and car bodies left along the highways."

He said "it is all well-planned and it will not be destroyed."

Mr. Campbell said Campbell River fits into this picture as a major hub, like Prince George.

"Campbell River is second in growth only to Prince George."

He said he is not in favor of a multi-purpose town in Strathcona Park. He promised even if a townsite is located in the park, it will not develop commercially.

He said "there will be very little commerce in that park. Shopping will be done at Campbell River."

Referring to fears of Battle Lake pollution, he said "there will be 100 per cent no pollution—period!"

Mr. Campbell said B.C. is ahead of the rest of Canada in combating pollution.

He said the government will insist that all municipalities be sewerfed if possible.

"Nanaimo calls itself the hub of the Island, but that is baloney," he claimed. "Campbell River leads west to Gold River, it goes north, it is a neighbor of San Francisco, Prince Rupert, and Alaska."

The minister said there are 7,500 in the municipality now, and by 1970 there will be at least 10,000.

"If some of the communities to the north grow faster than predicted, then these figures are all wrong," he said.

Spencer's Ex-Wife Recalls

He Was Popular But Leaned Left

COURTENAY — "He was popular when I married him but he had Communist leanings," said a well-known Courtenay resident and former businesswoman.

Kathleen Stephens, 833 Fitzgerald, was describing her nine-year marriage to spy suspect George Victor Spencer.

BREAK-UP

Miss Stephens was married to the late Mr. Spencer in 1933 and they were divorced in 1942.

His leftist beliefs "had nothing to do with the break-up of the marriage," she said.

Miss Stephens said the only change the Spencer case has brought to her life is the "constant ringing of the telephone."

OWNED STORE

Miss Stephens emphatically denied a statement attributed to her by a Vancouver newspaper, that Spencer "came from a good family, and I can't understand why he did it."

Miss Stephens said she never said any such thing.

For years she owned a children's-wear store on Fifth Avenue.

Big Cal 'Haven for Reds, Deviates'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)

— A state Senate committee charged Friday that under President Clark Kerr the giant University of California Berkeley campus has turned into a Communist haven and a centre for sexual deviation.

The Senate fact-finding committee on un-American activities said Kerr was instrumental in rehiring a teacher who, the committee said, lied about former Communist connections.

When he took the state's loyalty oath. Calling the Berkeley campus the "pivotal base" for the anti-Viet Nam war movement in the United States, the committee said Communists or Communist sympathizers first gained power in the "free speech" uprisings of 1954.

The report also criticized Kerr for allowing students and non-students to make use of university facilities to support off-campus political causes.

A spokesman for Kerr's office on the Berkeley campus said the appearance on campus of and "sexual misconduct was the San Francisco mime troupe, blatant."

Turning to homosexuality, the committee cited a story in a student newspaper, The Daily Californian. It said the information was published in one part of a five-part series of homosexuality and was obtained from Harold Call, president of the Mattachine Society of San Francisco, a group organized to protect the rights of homosexuals.

At the dance, the committee said, the smell of marijuana "pervaded the area," many of the dancers were intoxicated and "sexual misconduct was blatant."

Specifically mentioned were
